SWIMSUIT SPECIAL!

We gathered seven supermodels, took away most of their clothes, and brought them to a millionaire's palace on the island of Mustique. We also brought cameras. Then our boss went and made us put the pics in the magazine.

WE WANT ANSWERS!

94 JIMMY KIMMEL

Young James Kimmel was a lad just like you: a buffet-abusing college dropout who made it big on the boob tube with busty girls jumping on trampolines. Unlike you, when he wakes up, it's all still there in front of him. Meet the man behind Jimmy Kimmel Live. Duh.

Happy ending, Mr. Kimmel?

SEE AMERICA WORST

144 THE UGLY AMERICAN HANDBOOK

The secretary of state would like to remind you that every time you travel abroad, it's another opportunity to represent your country. You're not just a tourist; you're a goodwill ambassador for us folks back home. Here's how to screw it up every time.

"Wow! Did you take your teeth out?"

Can you spot the midgets in Casablanca? The Nazi propaganda mirrored in Star Wars? What would Quentin Tarantino smoke if he had 'em? (And don't you wish he would, just so he'd stop talking for a bit?) Take your seats…the mind-melting revelations are about to begin.

"OK, you're right, I need more fiber."

Keith Blanchard
Still searching for that 20-pound lobster

Bathing Booty

The world has long wondered: What's heaven going to look like? Since none of us 'round here are getting past that doorman, especially after what we did on page 74, we decided to build ourselves a little slice of heaven on Earth. I'm talking about, of course, Bikinipalooza 2003!

For our project, we started with sand and water—the white beaches of the beautiful, secluded slam-shack-of-the-rich-and-famous island of Mustique. Specifically, we waited until our zillionaire owner, Felix Dennis, was away on business and hijacked his vacation estate—and let me just say that his famous wine cellar is, or was, something to remember. Add seven angels, subtract most of their clothes, multiply by fruity rum drinks, and there you have it!

See the heavenly results on page 97. All I can say is, if we ever wake up and find ourselves flapping around the clouds in hospital johnnies to the sound of mellow harp music, we're gonna be pissed.

Enjoy the issue; I've got a livid Felix on line two—he wants to know who clogged the drain of his pink champagne fountain with a sheep's carcass.

P.S. Maxim subscribers can see video of our swim honeys—and of Hiroki's frankly pathetic attempts to score with them—online at the Maxim Lounge. If you're not a subscriber, why not become one? What are you, afraid of commitment? Chicken? Brock, broccck, broccck...

Better take out all this stuff about Felix or it's our asses! -Keith

No problem, boss— we'll get to it right after lunch

YOU TALKIN' TO US?

Did your Valentine end up balling your dad again? Sad bastard...Dry your eyes with these letters about missing limbs, vato slang, and pussycats galore. Since you have plenty of time on your hands, send all sweet nothings to the address on the right.

DID YOU WIN?

If we printed your letter this month, we're sending you a DVD of The Shield, the first season. To play, e-mail us at editors@maximmag.com or write to Readers' Letters, Maxim, 1040 6th Ave., 16th Floor, New York, NY 10018.

Aww, Carmen wins at musical chairs again!

From Here to Eternity

Great idea, giving us three different December covers of those burlesque babes the Pussycat Dolls. Christina Applegate reminded me of Married... With Children, which made me realize how old I am. Carmen Electra reminded me of her brief marriage to Dennis Rodman, who made me think of the '89 Pistons, which made me feel old. And Christina Aguilera reminded me of Britney Spears, who reminded me of Justin Timberlake, who reminded me of New Kids on the Block, and that made me feel old. And I'm only 22!

Anthony Randolph
Via e-mail

Sorry 'bout that, Gramps. Funnily enough, 22 reminds us of the editor who established our office tequila-shot record, may he rest in peace.

Canned Ham

Your article about getting your office mate fired was brilliant ["Your Official Maxim Sabotage Kit," October]. Unfortunately, the human resources department at my company disagreed, and I was fired after using a few of your suggestions to torment a coworker. That's bye-bye to a $50,000 salary. Worse still, I'm not even eligible to collect unemployment because of how my termination was classified. Do you know anyone who's hiring?

Mike D.
Via e-mail

Our kid sister Stuff magazine is, big time! Please send your résumé for all positions to Greg Gutfeld, 1040 6th Ave., 12th Floor, New York, NY 10018.

Off the Charts

Please help me settle a yearlong fight with my idiot roommate. I say that the Kenny Loggins song "Danger Zone," also the theme to Top Gun, is about flying. He says it's about having sex with a woman. Who's right?

Andrew Smith
Via e-mail

Now, now, girls. You're both wrong. Everyone knows that it's about going down on Wookiees.

PUT ME IN MAXIM!

Search and Rescue

We got a call at the firehouse that an employee crashed his car into a local 7-Eleven. The guy was OK, but the rack holding Maxim's swimsuit issue [February 2002] had been hit! Luckily, the mags sustained no serious injuries.

Ralph Tovar, fireman
Tony Cerquettini, engineer
Highland, CA

Check the employee's pockets—many's the time we've smashed through the front of a 7-Eleven as an elaborate cover to steal a bag of corn nuts.

Farewell to Arm

I work in a hospital trauma unit, and after reading "How to Amputate Your Own Limb" [December], I must admit that the directions you gave were right on—except for one little thing. When using alcohol to sterilize your instruments, do not take "a ▶ healthy swig for courage." Alcohol will thin your blood and cause excessive bleeding. Not good.

Gene Hauck
Nashville, TN

Our fact-checker discovered that, too, but he was too weak to call in the change before we rolled the presses. Sorry!

Greed Is Good

In December's Readers' Letters, you gave some whining reader Aragorn's sword from The Lord of the Rings. I've been a loyal subscriber for four years, and thanks to Maxim I know everything about everything. That was good enough for me, but now it's not.

Mike Andreasen
Racine, WI

Nor should it be. We hereby dedicate this entire issue to you, Mark.

Action Zero

In December's "People v. Aquaman" [Circus Maximus], you try to convict the old Aquaman for being lame. But the new Aquaman has a new look and new powers, and has even committed murder. Also, Aqualad is no longer just Aquaman's sidekick. He's now a grown man named Tempest.

Chris Sanders
Via e-mail

Wow, Chris! That's so cool! [Sorry, even we won't pick on retarded kids.]

Out of Sync

Did you guys start snorting cinnamon as a part of your daily diet? You gave Justin Timberlake's new album two stars [Hot Zone, December] and gave a mediocre review of the Tool album [Hot Zone, June 2001]. What the hell?

Mark Fenlong
Via e-mail

Calm down. We gave him two stars, not a reach-around.

Loaded Question

In "How Drunk Are You?" [Circus Maximus, December], you say a person would need a higher blood alcohol content to sleep with Helen Hunt than Anna Nicole Smith. Were you guys drunk when you wrote that? I'd bed Hunt stone-cold sober but would need at least five shots of rotgut to lie down with the Jabba-like Smith.

Lots of letters flooded our offices on behalf of Ms. Hunt. We had no idea so many of our readers were pansies. ▶

LOVE CONNECTION

AFTER-SCHOOL SPECIAL

They're single and read Maxim, and both sent us graduation invites. Sounds like fate to us!

The Class Clown

I've been a loyal subscriber for the past two years. Now it's time that I got something back from you guys. Send cash, extend my subscription for free, or ship me one of your lovely Maxim ladies; I need an escort for graduation.

Tyler Carter
Waynesboro, VA

Most Likely to Succeed

After four grueling years, I'm finally graduating from Axtell High. Since your magazine helped me make it through many painful nights of studying, I thought it would be cool if you guys shared this important day with me.

Rebecca Bennett
Waco, TX

Sorry we missed your graduations; one of our senior editors finally passed his high school equivalency from prison, so we had our own celebration to attend. But, Tyler, we recommend that you put your new tux to good use and take a chance on Rebecca here. She's lovely, intelligent, and legal! Good luck!

Spanish Fly

I've been a Maxim subscriber for three years. As a Latino, I was happy to see that you introduced some of our street slang to the rest of the world ["Nice Foquin Car, Mang!" Circus Maximus, November]. And by the way, you guys aren't mierda, you are the mierda!

Benito D.
Via e-mail

Gracias. *Incidentally, what's Spanish slang for "*Pay It Forward blew donkey balls"?

Waves of Justice

I'm a DJ at KDVV 100.3 V-100 in Topeka, Kansas. Last week while I was on the air, someone stole my truck right out of the station parking lot. So I called the police and then went on the air to ask my listeners for help. Two hours later a guy called to say he'd seen my truck with a V-100 bumper sticker and the vanity plate BAGGZ 20 miles outside of town. Within minutes, the Kansas Highway Patrol stopped the thief and got my truck back. And it all happened in one shift on the air! So I thought my story would make a good Maxim article.

Joey Baggz
Topeka, KS

Are you kidding? It barely works as a letter.

Rise of the Machines

Your holiday gift guide is always the best ["Santa Busted!" December]. First, the photos of the looting elf and a bruised Claus were priceless. Second, my girlfriend bought me the R2-D2 Interactive Astromech Droid you featured. I spent Christmas giving the impish machine-midget orders. It was great.

Ryan Blake
Via e-mail

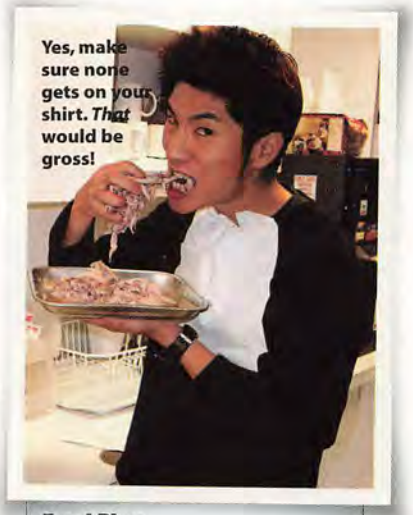
Glad you got lucky. In our next issue, we're featuring a beer-fetching robot. So tell your girlfriend to keep her checkbook out.

R-e-s-p-e-c-t

David Peisner's review of Pearl Jam's latest and, quite possibly, greatest album, Riot Act [December, Hot Zone], was fantastic. It's the first review I've read anywhere that credits them as an innovative and legendary band. On behalf of PJ fans everywhere, thank you. And thank Mr. Peisner for giving respect to a group that never really expected it in the first place.

John Quintela
Moscow, ID

Thanks, John. But we're thinking of letting Peisner go—creative differences.



Yes, make sure none gets on your shirt. That would be gross!

Fowl Play

After reading about Hiroki's canned-meat-eating adventures ["Tins of the Flesh," Circus Maximus, June], I felt that he'd been robbed of an opportunity. I found this sealed bird in Canada, and while I've never opened one of these delicacies myself, I can imagine that the contents are a perfect assignment for your human guinea pig.

You guys seem to rip on vegetarians a lot. I know eating meat is manly and that I should wear a skirt because I don't think slaughtering animals is cool, but chill out and eat a salad.

For the Benefit of Mankind.

Our mission was to engineer underwear that stays in place and keeps you cool and dry where you need it most. A man's man underwear, from a brand you're proud to buy and glad to put on. We took the exclusive Under Armour® fabric, a lightweight and silky microfiber blend, and added four-way stretch to give it reliable recovery all day long, wash after wash. The result is breathable comfort and undeniable support, from the bedroom to the office to the gym. You'll never wear "regular" underwear again.

True Confession

Two nuns are on a break in the rectory.

"I was cleaning Father Tom's room a few days ago," gossips the first nun, "and I found a bunch of condoms."

"Oh, my," gasps the second nun. "What did you do?"

"I poked holes in them," she replies.

"Fuck!" says the second nun.

Money for Nothing

A man and a woman are standing in line at a hospital donation center.

"Long line, huh?" says the man. "What are you donating?"

"Blood," the woman replies. "They pay 10 bucks a pint."

"I'm donating my sperm," says the man. "They pay $25 an ounce."

A couple of weeks later, the man and woman meet again in the same line.

"Hi there," says the man. "Donating some more blood?"

The woman shakes her head and mumbles, "Mmm-unnh!"

Crazy Like a Fox

An orderly in an insane asylum is making the rounds one day when he sees a man running back and forth pretending he's driving a car.

"What are you doing, Willy?" he asks.

"I'm going to Chicago for the weekend," the patient replies.

The orderly chuckles and enters Willy's room to change the sheets. When he walks in he sees one of the other patients furiously masturbating on the bed.

"What the hell do you think you're doing?" yells the orderly.

"Shhh," says the patient, "I'm screwing Willy's wife while he's in Chicago."

Double-Talk

A second-grade teacher is going over some vocabulary and asks if any student can use the word beautiful twice in the same sentence.

Suzie raises her hand and says, "Julie bought herself a beautiful dress, and she looked beautiful in it."

"Good job. How about you, Joe?"

"That's easy," he says. "Last night my sister told my father she was pregnant. He said, 'Beautiful—fucking beautiful.'"

Confederacy of Dunces

A man walks into a bar, sits down, and says to the guy next to him, "Hey, you wanna hear a great Polish joke?"

"Listen, pal," the guy replies. "I'm Poland's kick-boxing champion. My two friends here are both world-ranked judo masters, and they're Polish, too. Now, you still want to tell that joke?"

"Nah," the man replies, "I don't feel like explaining it three times."

Pole Position

A man wakes to a beautiful, sunny day.

"Honey," he says, shaking his wife, "wake up. We're going fishing."

"I don't know…" she mumbles.

"I'm going out to get the dog and load up the truck," he says. "When I get back, you decide: Come fishing, give me a blow job, or take it up the ass."

She rolls her eyes, but when he comes back she starts to unzip him.

"I see you've made your decision," he says, pulling down his pants.

"What's that smell?" she asks, wincing.

"Oh, yeah," he says, "the dog didn't wanna go, either."

Lady Luck

A man who has been slipping in and out of a coma regains consciousness. He whispers to his wife, "You've been here through it all. When my business failed and we lost the house, you didn't leave. When my health went, you stayed by my side… You know what?"

"What, dear?" she asks gently.

"Get the hell away from me. I think you're cursed!"

THE $150 JOKE

Love Thy Neighbor

A young man is walking through his apartment lobby when he bumps into a gorgeous woman wearing a very loosely tied robe.

She begins flirting with him, and after a minute she places her hand on his chest and says, "Let's go to my place. I hear someone coming."

He follows her into her apartment, and once inside she immediately slips off her robe.

"Tell me," she purrs, "what do you think is my best feature?"

"Um, I guess that would be your ears," he replies nervously.

"My ears?" she says. "How can you possibly think that the best part of this body is my ears?"

"Well," he stammers, "back in the hall when you said you heard someone coming? That was me."

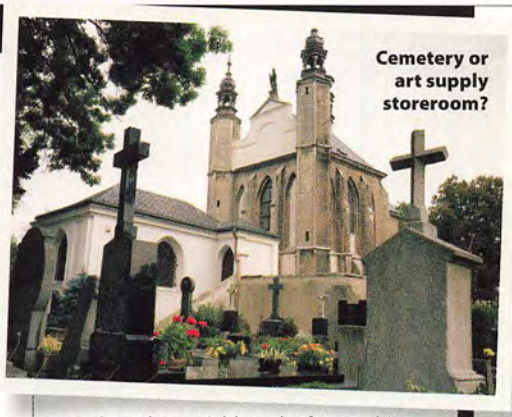
THE BIG PICTURE

BONE HOME

Why let the worms have your mortal remains when you could use them to spruce up your shack?



Cemetery or art supply storeroom?

The Middle Ages were a magical time for the Grim Reaper. Not only did ham-handed medical care mean people routinely died from stubbed toes and paper cuts, but intense superstition and the absence of television made everyone obsessed with death. So in 1278, outside what is now Prague, an enterprising monk dumped a handful of soil from Jerusalem on the cemetery near the Sedlec Monastery, and it became Europe's hippest place to take a dirt nap. By 1318, 30,000 stiffs were buried there, thanks to a helpful plague. Soon space was at such a premium that a half-blind monk was given the enviable task of unearthing bodies and storing the remains in the church's crypt to make way for people who proved their worthiness with fat donations to the monastery. In 1870 the crypt was overflowing with a 40,000-stiff maggot smorgasbord, so those wacky monks hired woodcarver Frantisek Rint to decorate the church with all the bones. Highlights include an eight-foot-long chandelier ringed with skulls, containing at least one of every bone in the human body. There are even crosses carved out of leg bones. All coming soon to an IKEA near you!

THIRD GRADE #25

THIS MONTH: SLIME BOMB

Make your enemies foaming mad whilst you get away clean.

THE PLAN: Smacking a coworker with a cream pie will make you look like a sexually deviant circus clown. Instead, adopt the finesse of the practiced saboteur with a time-release creamplosion. It'll ruin a patsy's day while you hide like the yellow-bellied coward that you are.

THE SETUP: Freeze a can of regular ol' shaving cream—gel won't cut it—for eight hours. Remove the bottom with a can opener, and stash the can in some brown-noser's desk or briefcase. It'll be an hour before the foam thaws and expands, so plan your absence accordingly.

THE PAYOFF: When the poor sap returns, he'll find a hemorrhaging canister spraying gallons of spooge all over his wampum. Even if he manages to clean up the mess, he won't be able to stop passersby from saying, "I should make you shave my balls, Foam Boy!"

It thinks about traction so you can think about, well, other stuff. You know how lateral G forces affect the contact patch? We didn't think so. That's why our engineers figured out how to let the car do the math. The result is 4MOTION™ all-wheel drive, a system that constantly shifts power among all four wheels to maximize traction. Sound complicated? You have no idea. But the beauty of it is, that's what lets you focus on other things (like the road). Get the complete story at vw.com

Her gigs: Guess?, Victoria's Secret
Her story: Growing up in rural Belgium, the cunningly lingual Ingrid—no, no, we mean she's fluent in five languages—never imagined she'd be a globetrotting adventurer. "My first time on a plane was for my first modeling job in Morocco," recalls the winsome blonde. "I was 16 and so scared I threw up the whole ride." Her fear of flying long gone—she's now an avid skydiver—Ingrid has supporting roles in two upcoming French films and dreams of making it in Hollywood. "I'd love to be Juliette Lewis," she confesses. Funny, we'd love Juliette Lewis to be Ingrid Seynhaeve.

1929

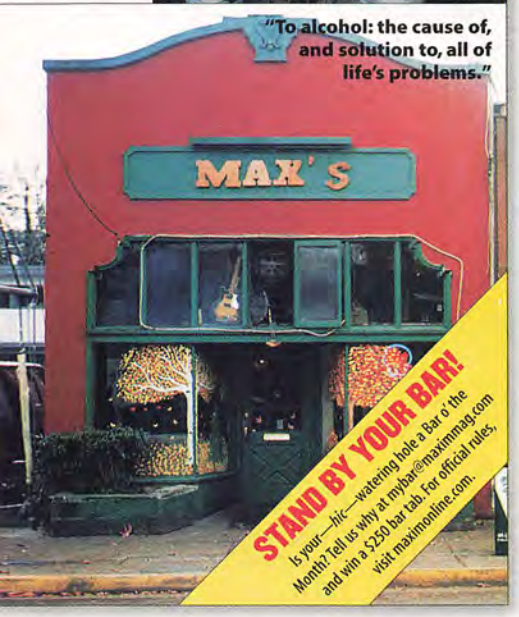
BAR O' THE MONTH

MAX'S TAVERN

Finally, a place where rabid Simpsons fans and slacking coeds can enjoy a cool, refreshing Duff.

The state of Oregon is a Simpsons-lover's paradise. Drive around Portland—where series creator Matt Groening grew up—and you'll find yourself on streets named Flanders, Lovejoy, and Quimby. Groening also spent some time in Eugene, which may explain why Max's Tavern, a University of Oregon haunt since the '30s, bears more than a passing resemblance to a certain animated watering hole. "Moe's is pretty much an amalgam of Max's and maybe two other places," says Chase Fairbairn, the bar's owner for nearly a decade. "We have a picture of people in the bar watching Nixon's resignation [around the time Groening attended college], and it looks a lot like Moe's." Even if the tavern's rightful place in 'toon history may be hard to validate—Groening ain't talking—it's still a top spot to meet girls so drunk they'd get it on in the parking lot with Barney. "This is the ultimate neighborhood bar. Classic, but not classy," says Fairbairn, and on cue, these girls started kissing.

"I'd kill everyone here for a drop of sweet, tasty beer."



"To alcohol: the cause of, and solution to, all of life's problems."

WHO CARES?

They downed him with a 60-foot porch light

"Heh, heh. Spock said 'Bones.'"

G'HEAD, ASK US ANYTHING

Maxim answers all your bubonic, subatomic, gastronomic questions.

Q: What's the deadliest animal on Earth?

A: Since we haven't yet bred our army of nuclear-powered elephants, there's no clear-cut answer. The great white shark is often referred to as nature's most efficient killing machine, but Jaws kills only about 10 people a year worldwide. The inland taipan, or "fierce snake," of Australia has the most toxic venom in the world; one bite yields enough to kill 250,000 mice—or, with luck, 100 Aussies. In Africa the hippopotamus kills far more people than crocodiles, lions, or dyspeptic monkeys. But it turns out those animals are all kinda pussies. "Mosquitoes are arguably the deadliest animals because of their role in transmitting diseases," says former USDA entomologist Ralph A. Bram. How deadly? Mosquito-borne malaria alone kills 2.5 million people a year. Bug zappers for everyone!

Q: What the hell is antimatter?

A: According to the sci-fi geek virgins in our tech-support department, subatomic particles—electrons, protons, Verne Troyer—have corresponding "antiparticles" that are identical except for their opposite electrical charge; they are the building blocks of antimatter. When subatomic particles and antiparticles come in contact, the collision produces a burst of energy. A lone hydrogen atom slamming into an antihydrogen atom creates only enough juice to run a light bulb for a few millionths of one millionth of a second. In theory this process replicated many times over could propel spaceships, but there's far more matter than antimatter in the universe—scientists aren't sure why—and creating antimatter by smashing atoms together is costly. "Anybody who tells you that it will one day power spacecraft," says physicist David Harris of the American Physical Society in College Park, Maryland, "is trying to sell you something." Like a weapons contract!

Q: Can't I just take vitamins instead of eating fruits and vegetables?

A: As much as we loathe the sweat-from-Shaq's-ass-crack taste of Brussels sprouts, we have to admit that cancer, diabetes, and heart disease are worse. "Supplements are insurance against vitamin and mineral deficiencies, but that's all," says Amy Lanou, nutrition director of the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine in Washington, D.C. While jarred vitamins are just as healthy as the ones in food, pills don't contain fiber, which fights disease and prevents your colon from tying itself into knots of calcified pork rinds (even Metamucil can't replace the real thing). If you're going to pop vitamins, don't take more than four times the RDA of vitamin A or D—they, much like Freddie Prinze Jr. movies, can be toxic in large amounts.

MORAL AUTHORITY

ASK FATHER JOHNSON

FATHER, IS IT IMMORAL FOR A MAN TO DATE TWO WOMEN AT THE SAME TIME?
SINCE IT INCREASES THE TEMPTATION AROUSED BY THE FLESH, IT IS UNWISE TO CONSORT WITH HARLOTS IN THE FIRST PLACE.
WHAT IF YOU MEET TWO SWELL GIRLS YOU REALLY LIKE?
A SINNER MAY CONTINUE DOWN HIS PATH OF DOUBLE DARKNESS UNTIL ONE OF THE WOMEN PROFESSES HER LOVE OR UNTIL HE CAN NO LONGER NAVIGATE HIS WEB OF LIES—WHICHEVER COMES FIRST.
I UNDERSTAND, FATHER.
NOW, DOUBLE-TEAMING—THAT'S A DIFFERENT STORY. LORD HELP YOU IF YOU'RE LIQUORED UP AND STUMBLE ACROSS TWO LADIES OF THE EVENING!
IT IS GETTING DARK...

DO EVERYTHING BETTER

How To

"OK, so maybe you have heard that one."

HOW TO

CRACK WISE

The legendary Rodney Dangerfield on crafting a knee-slapper and failing to receive esteem.

"Writing jokes isn't like accounting," says the 81-years-young comic, whose autobiography, It's Not Easy Being Me, comes out this year. "There's no formula." But there are tricks, so put on your laughin' hat.

1. CHOOSE YOUR WEAPON

A joke presents a familiar situation and subverts the expected result with a play on words, exaggeration, or a reversal of the norm. Man bringing pies to orphans steps on hoe; handle swings up and smacks man in eye; man staggers comically and falls in fertilizer silo, clawing at the shit-slicked sides and screaming for help that will never come. That's irony! Tailor the material to the audience; make it easy for them to laugh and they'll oblige. Rodney's famous for being the butt of his own jokes: Audiences sympathize with the underdog, and the gags never get old. "I write jokes I can use 10 years from now," says Rodney. "Political jokes last three days." No wonder Gallagher's gone!

Photograph, Donald Miller; wardrobe styling, Penelope McAuliffe for Factory Artists; hair, Ian James for Factory Artists; makeup, Dawn Brocco for Factory Artists; special effects makeup, Nico for Factory Artists. Shot on location at the Laugh Factory on the Sunset Strip in L.A.

2. SET 'EM UP

Even if you already know what your punch line is going to be (we humbly suggest "Rectum? Damn near killed him!"), it'll be pretty useless without the perfect setup. Embellish only where necessary; when making up names, know that goofy, consonant-heavy words—especially ones with hard k sounds—are comic gold. Thus, "Father Malarchuk, Rabbi Schlickenstein, and a duck with an enormous cock walk into a bar…" is a can't-miss intro. And when in doubt, keep it simple. Says Rodney: "I remember when I lost my virginity. It was the first time I cheated on my wife! That's hilarious, but it's too deep for some people." Like us, apparently—what's virginity?

3. KILL 'EM! (METAPHORICALLY THIS TIME)

Quoth Rodney: "I went to see my doctor, Dr. Vinnie Boombatz. I told him, 'Doc, I broke my arm in two places.' He told me to keep out of those places." Familiar situation + funny-sounding moniker + misdirection that flips audience expectations = hilarity. If the boardroom isn't in stitches, don't be discouraged—check your delivery. "You could have the best joke in the world; it still may not come out right," Rodney says. Play with phrasing or dry-hump a thesaurus; changing even one word can boost a joke into the laughosphere. Why bother? For the chicks, of course! "If I really want to impress a girl, I'll tell her a joke," explains Rodney. "Then I'll give her a hundred dollars."

HOW TO

"Don't even think about it."

HOW TO

RIDE A BULL

It's just like sex—wild, dangerous, and eight seconds long.

1. GET READY

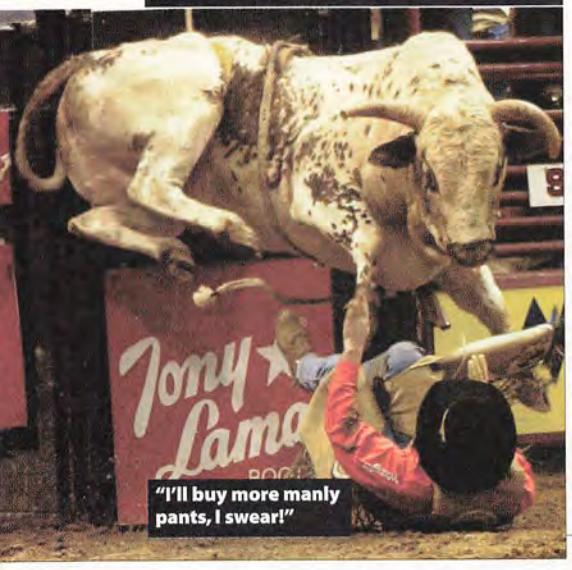
Staying atop a madly bucking one-ton bull isn't as easy as it sounds. Brent Vincent, a top rider in Professional Bull Riders, Inc., says that anyone moronic enough to try this needs to wear safety gear: thick leather gloves to prevent rope burns; spurs with dull, loosely locked rowels for traction; and a Kevlar vest to protect against being gored or crushed…or shot by the bull's jealous wife. Let's ride!

2. GET ON

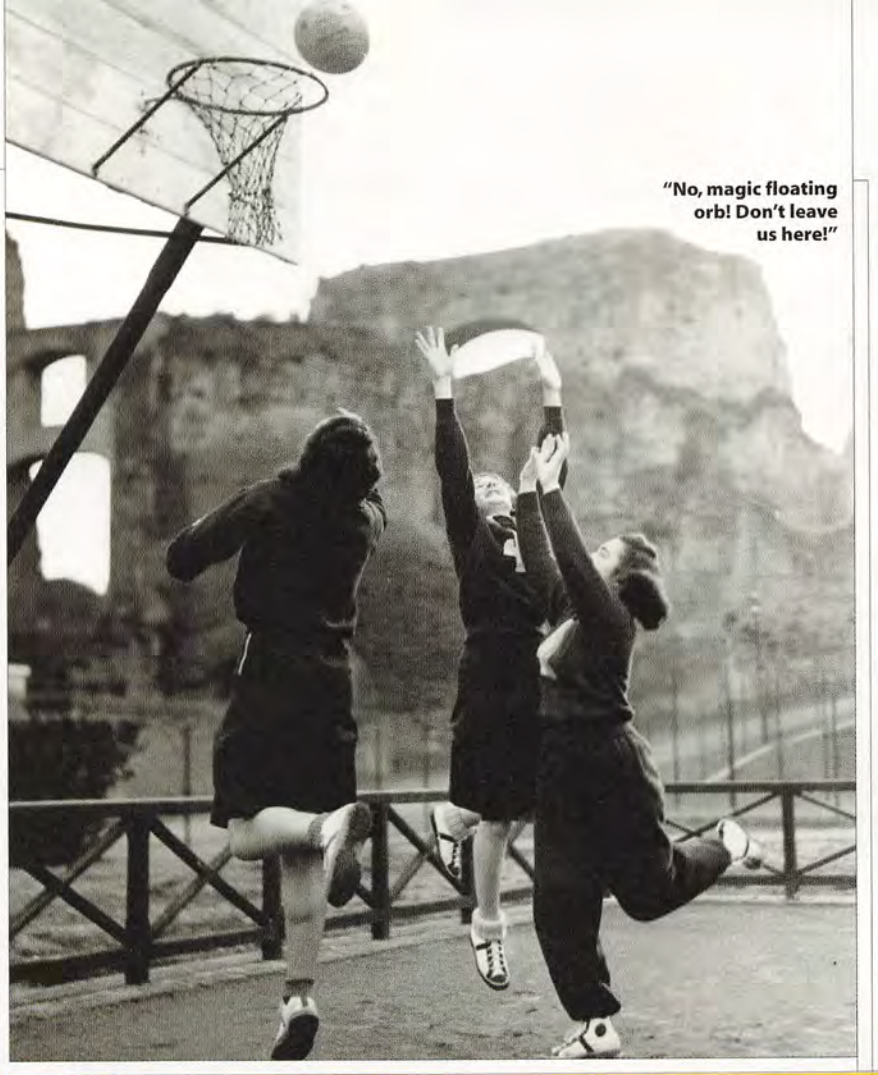
Mentally prepare before setting ass upon bull: "Loosen up and visualize the ride," Vincent suggests. When mounting, "put your feet on the bull's back and never touch his horns." This makes him angry—you wouldn't like him when he's angry. You'll be handed a rosin-covered rope with a leather handle to wrap around the bull and your wrist. Strength isn't as important as balance. "For every move the bull makes, make a countermove," explains Vincent. Never lean back, though: That's the easiest way to get tossed.

3. GET OFF

After a long eight seconds, look for a safe spot to dismount. When his front is kicked up, turn to the hand that's holding on and jump off toward the rear. Oh, and make sure you free your hand from the rope first so you aren't dragged like a rag doll. Confused? All will become second nature with practice. Vincent claims, "When you're riding, there's no time for thinking." Which is nice, because if you're trying this, you're probably not thinking a whole lot anyway.



"I'll buy more manly pants, I swear!"



"No, magic floating orb! Don't leave us here!"

HOW TO

BE HER REBOUND

Enjoy no-strings-attached sex—with someone other than yourself!

STEP 1: PERFORM RECON

No matter how much you want to move in on your recently dumped hot female friend, resist temptation…at first. Go too fast and you'll ruin a special friendship—nah, just kidding, but you will lose the opportunity to get some hot friend-on-friend action. "Get invited along whenever women you know take out a girl who just got dumped," says Marcus Meleton, author of Nice Guys Don't Get Laid. "Then console her." Your buddy just broke up with his gal? Assuming he gives you his boozy permission, pursue her—after all, who better to confirm his jerkiness than you? "Each time I find out my boyfriend has cheated on me with some slut," says 24-year-old Paisley, "I hook up with one of his friends to make him mad." (Her phone number is…but no, that would be too easy.)

STEP 2: GET IN

Nothing loosens up a recent burn victim like the soothing ointment of reassurance. So start buttering her up. "The ultimate thing to say is, 'The only reason you're not with him is because he is incapable of having a permanent relationship,'" Meleton explains. See, it's his hang-up—even if he actually dumped her because she's a psycho. Don't try to rush your new friend into the bedroom; you need to sink the hook that you're sensitive and sweet, i.e., the complete opposite of the dirtball who ditched her.

STEP 3: SEAL THE DEAL

By this point you should have her feeling good about herself. Remember the advice about not hurrying her into the sack? Well, bust out the jimmy hats: She's now ready for the kind of ego stroke one can only get by bumping uglies with a new partner. Tell her that she deserves to let loose and have some fun tonight. See? You're not taking advantage of her—you're helping her! Be, uh, selfless for as long as you like, but if for some reason she gets the crazy idea that she wants a relationship, play your trump card: Tell her the hookup was impetuous, and you both need some time to clear your heads. If one of you should meet a nice stewardess in the meantime…

"I just laid this."

HOW TO

HOW TO

GO TO HEAVEN GUARANTEED

No one really knows which religion God likes best.* So cover your bases and try 'em all!

HEY, I'M A CHRISTIAN!
Party on, because you can do whatever the hell you want as long as you "repent" and accept Jesus as your savior at some point before your execution. Says Ephesians 2:8–9, "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith…not by works, so that no one can boast." Want some insurance? Get baptized, spread the Good Word—no, we do not mean bukkake—and for some extra brownie points, perform the holy sacraments. Oh, we guess you'd better abstain from sex till you get married. D'oh!

HEY, I'M A MUSLIM!
The good news: In heaven you'll hang out with 72 virgins—and we don't mean your local D&D club. The bad news: Shari'ah, the way of life prescribed by Islam, stresses both physical and spiritual cleanliness, so you're supposed to pray five times a day, lay off booze and pork, fast during Ramadan, and pack up the Family Truckster for one road trip to Mecca. It also outlaws suicide and killing innocents—so there are now some very surprised terrorists with hot pitchforks lodged in their colons.

HEY, I'M A HINDU!
To reach the state of eternal enlightenment known as nirvana, you don't blow off your head with a shotgun; you live several lives (both human and animal) till you get it right. The law of karma states that the quality of your rebirth hinges on the moral quality of the life you've just led. The guiding principles are dharma (righteousness, which we're bad at), artha (economic success, which we're really bad at), and kama (pleasure, our forte). Oh, and quit with the cow tipping—they're sacred animals.

OY, I'M A JEW!
Since Jews believe the nature of heaven is unknowable for those of us on Earth, they focus on mitzvot, or good works, which govern behavior from taboo sexual acts to proper business practices. Your enjoyment of heaven is directly related to how well you follow these tenets. "Judaism is a way of life," says Gary Rendsburg, professor of Jewish studies at Cornell University. If you're a jerk, you could be sent to a nether world called Gehinnom. Translation: "eternal Streisand concert."

*But it ain't Scientology.

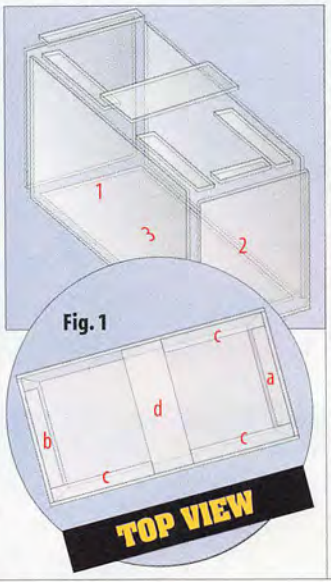
HOW TO

BUILD AN AQUARIUM

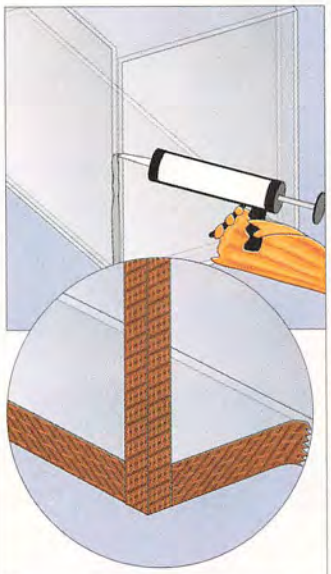
Because your beloved pets deserve the best prison money can buy.

Will swim in endless circles for food



1. PICK SOME GLASS

Aquariums are like ta-tas: Size matters. A freshwater tank that's 48 inches long, 18 inches deep, and 24 inches high will both impress the ladies and house a school of tropical fish without leaving you floundering for space. Get two 48"x23 1/2" panes of half-inch-thick glass for the front and back panels (1), two 17"x23 1/2" panes for the sides (2), and one 46 7/8"x16 7/8" pane for the bottom (3). "Go to a mirror or glass shop and ask them to seam, or smooth down, the edges after making the cuts," suggests John Stevenson of Aquariums For You (aquariumsforyou.com). For the top, pick up one 14"x2" strip of glass (a), one 16"x2" strip (b), three 19"x2" strips (c), one 18"x10" piece (d), and a 48"x18" piece of quarter-inch-thick plastic. Don't worry—if fish can build these, how hard can it be?



2. STICK IT

Using a silicone gun, run a half-inch-wide bead of aquarium-safe silicone along a short edge of the front panel and join it with a side panel at a right angle. Wipe off the excess silicone, place filament tape along the outside of the joint to secure it, and repeat for the other sides. (The side edges should nestle inside the top, bottom, front, and back edges.) Press the silicone into the seams so the edges are flush. For the top (see fig. 1), use the 16-inch strips, the 14-inch strips (the extra two inches at the back allows room for the filter), and all three 19-inch strips to create slots. Now start drinkin'; you need to wait a week for the silicone to set. When you come to, peel off the tape and scrape off the excess silicone with your girlfriend's razor. Congratulations—you're now the proud owner of a big glass box!

"Guess I won't be casting the first stone."

3. FILL 'ER UP

If you want your fish to survive the week, you'll need a 300-watt heater to maintain a water temperature of 77 degrees and a bio-wheel filter to keep the water clean ($30 and up at petdiscounters.com). Dechlorinated tap water is fine, but let the filter run for a few days before adding your future sushi—er, pets; check peteducation.com for more maintenance tips. Pick up a 48-inch fluorescent light with timer at your local pet store, and get yer skulls, shipwrecks, and faux-toxic waste barrels at blueribbonpet.com. Ooh, and fish—you should totally buy some fish! Piranhas are a real crowd pleaser, but Stevenson recommends African cichlids. Why? They're colorful, active, and less likely to devour the flesh from your carelessly submerged hand. Petswarehouse.com has a wide selection ranging from your basic pledge-snack goldfish to the $350 true albino pleco, which you can name after a famous albino, like Gary Busey or . . . nope, that's it.

TOTAL COST: $600–$900
TOOLS: Silicone gun, razor blade, square, filament tape, rubber gloves, faucet, paper towels, drawn butter, lemon wedges
DIFFICULTY: 10,000 out of 20,000 leagues

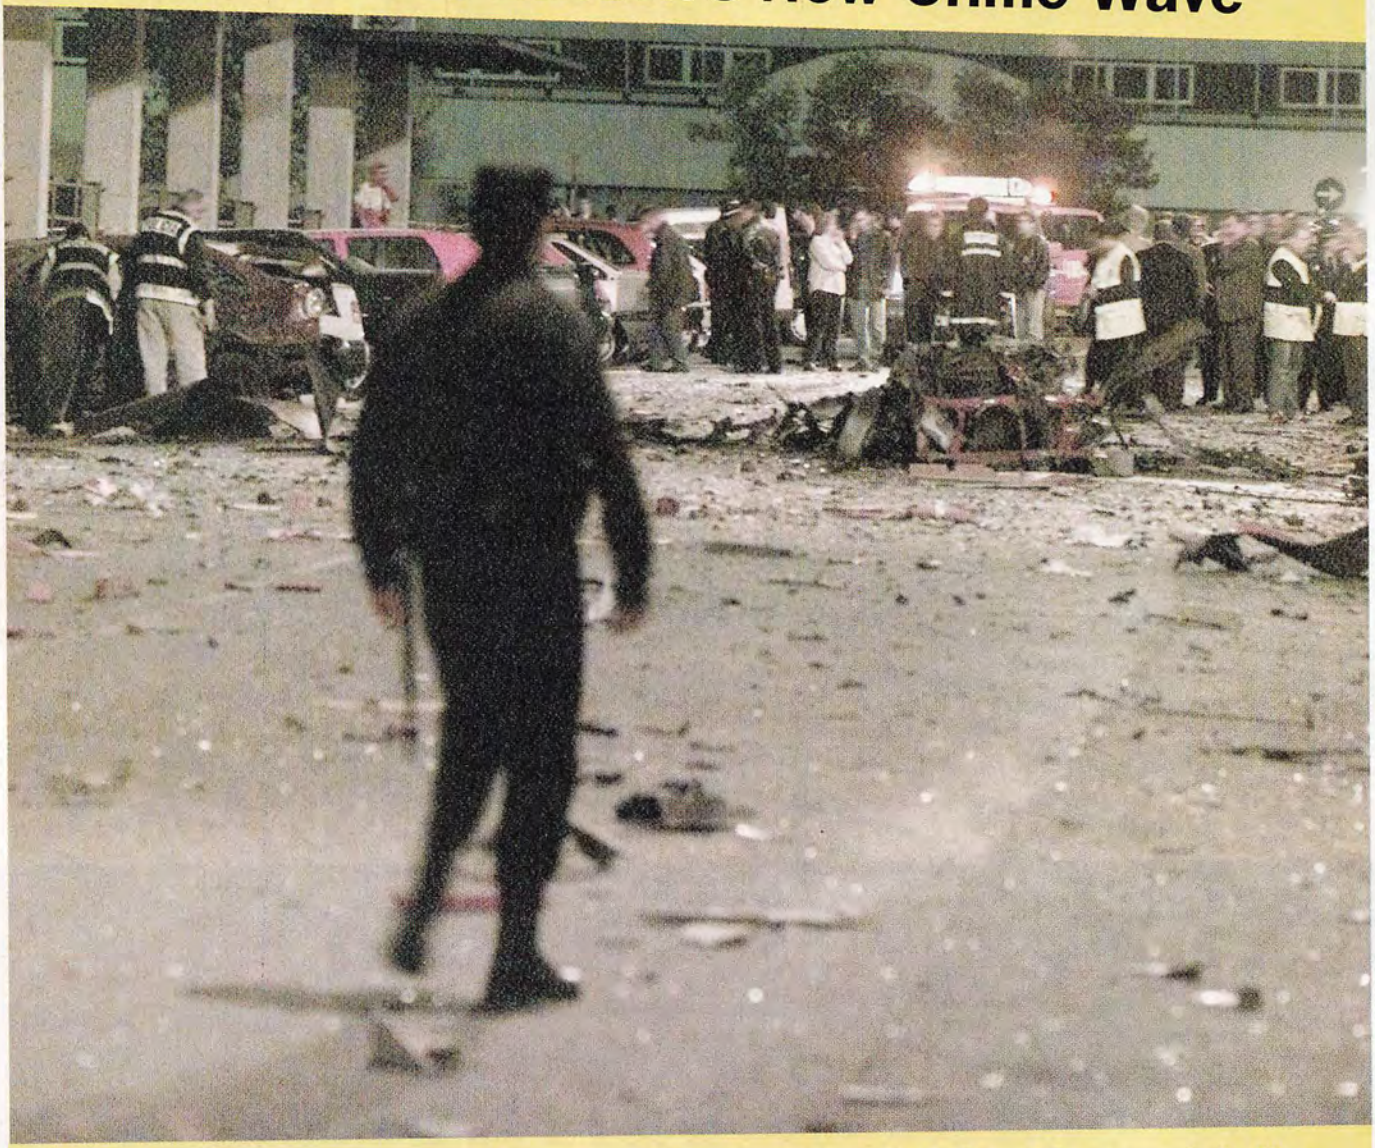
WHO'S RUNNING LONDON?

EXCLUSIVE: London's New Crime Wave



Gang wars peak. A city caught in the middle.

advertisement

EXCLUSIVE: Thugs in Charge

by Brian Endicott
Tabloid Press

Chaos and fear have long been common in the dodgy areas of London, but now middle-and upper-class areas are feeling it as well. What is happening to our city? How did this lawlessness come about?

There's no simple answer to this. A large part of it has to do with the fact that the problem of organized crime was overlooked. Whilst it was, the gangs grew steadily and quickly and started expanding their empires throughout London.

The wrong end of an apparent Charlie Jolson tirade leaves a man lifeless on a warehouse floor.

Four different groups seem to be behind most of the goings-on, but to what extent remains unknown.

First and foremost, there is Charles "Charlie" Jolson and his boys, the Bethnal Green Mob. Jolson seems to be the name at the end of a lot of pointing fingers. Murder, drug trafficking, prostitution and extortion are just some of the activities London's biggest don is being attached to. When he's seen, he looks sharp. He's the kind of man who loves his power and loves to be noticed. If not for the crimes outlined in the case being built against him, he would appear to be a prominent member of society. He is the one at the top of the city's most-wanted list and is consistently linked to the most heinous of London's crimes. If there's one man authorities have their sights on, it's him. But, unfortunately for London, he's not alone. There's plenty of scum to follow.

The Yardies...specialize in the sale of drugs, guns and, consequently, violence.

Second, there are the 14K Triads. In recent years, they have broken out from Hong Kong to establish a stronghold in London. Recent reports put Shan Chu (Bobby) Lee in the driver's seat, but because of the order of their unit, so shrouded in secrecy, it makes it difficult to determine for certain. The Triads are an extremely loyal and relentless group who seem to execute with fearless precision. They leave nothing but corpses.

Moving on, there's the Collins Crew, headed by Nick Collins. Consider this band the Bethnal Green with a touch of class. Such is to say their getaway cars turn heads, even when not leaving a murder scene.

Last on the scum list are The Yardies, a group of Jamaicans in North London who specialize in the sale of drugs, guns and, consequently, violence. They're almost solely to blame for the spread of drugs out of the ghettos.

A van burns on a busy London street. This sight is becoming all too common.

But another name that keeps popping up is Mark Hammond, a convicted bank robber. His affiliation at this point is in question, but CCTV have more than once pinned him to recent crimes, including arson, assault with a deadly weapon, carjacking and possibly murder. Hammond seems to be working alone, but, as of yet, nothing is certain. He is slippery, and although cameras have caught him, authorities haven't been close.

London's New Crime Wave

London is bracing itself, waiting to see what's next from an organized crime circuit that seems to have dug its trenches deep, ready for a long battle to control the streets.

Surveillance cameras implicate Mark Hammond in at least two London crimes. His affiliation remains unclear, however.

After the perfect man was cast to play Charlie Jolson, the creators of The Getaway used a revolutionary proprietary motion-capture technology to bring every one of his evil expressions to the screen. The result was the kind of villain you love to hate–and one who could turn nasty at the drop of a hat.

These are some of the stories that make up The Getaway, where you're either Mark Hammond, a retired thief whose past has caught up with him in a very ugly way–starting with your wife being killed and your son kidnapped. This is how you're pulled back into London's crime sector, doing jobs for England's worst. Or you're Frank Carter, a rogue cop who's hot on the trail of these thugs and more than hungry for a bust.

The Getaway is a crime story more than three years in the making. And it's the making of it that truly differentiates it from any game ever produced.

The creators of The Getaway sought to make something that walked the line between the worlds of gaming and cinema–a game that would actually rival an action movie and capture the hearts and minds of their respective audiences.

They wanted their game to take place in London and have a decidedly British feel. To achieve this, their inspiration came from British gangster films of the past several decades.

The first step was to re-create London, which was essential to the concept of The Getaway as a whole. The locations for most video games are made up. Not with The Getaway. Forty square kilometers were reconstructed with painstaking detail. The product of this arduous process raises the level of realism ever obtained on a gaming platform. And given that much of The Getaway is driving action, as much attention was paid to the cars as to the locations. In fact, any car, bus or cab can be carjacked and driven for a high-speed getaway. So with 24 suicidal missions for you to undertake–from opposite sides of the law–as either Mark Hammond or Frank Carter, The Getaway brings London's underworld to life.

Next, unlike other games that just cast voices, The Getaway looked for the best actors for the roles, shot the scenes between the actors, then animated them using a proprietary motion-capture technology. This effect gives it part of its unique cinematic feel. Everybody in the game, even the seemingly meaningless pedestrians, were cast, scanned and motion-captured.

But for as long as it took to create, the short answer is that The Getaway is quite possibly the most exciting and unique title that has ever come out for PlayStation 2. The most ambitious undertaking ever by a video game, The Getaway's graphics, gameplay and, most of all, story set the bar for games to come. But is it a game? Or is it a movie? One thing is certain: "By challenging existing production methods, The Getaway shows that video games can become as boundless and culturally significant as films," says Brendan McNamara, director of The Getaway.

Welcome to London's underworld–where cops don't deal, criminals don't bargain and crime bosses don't negotiate. A world built upon a top-notch screenplay with plenty of twists and (hairpin) turns in the plot. Much hype has been made of this title, and it delivers in spades. Do you call it a movie? It's difficult to know, because simply calling it a game falls sadly short.

If These Sheets Could Talk!

REAL LIVE GIRLS!

What happens when you ask 12 random girls about the wildest move a guy pulled during sex? They talk . . . and Laura Gilbert shares their secrets with you.

Every girl has a sex romp that stands out in her mind as the most memorable ever—a time when a guy tried a new move she'd never experienced before and totally blew her away . . . or made her cringe. To keep you in the right category, I tracked down a bunch of girls and ambushed them with questions about the crazy maneuvers that still fuel their fantasies. Read on to find out which surprise twists left them gasping for more and which ones sent them bolting for the door. Then get ready to star in your girl's best story.

Sneaking in the Back Door ✓

"I had just started dating this guy and we were totally going at it, having a great time, when he pressed a finger up against my back door. At first I was like, 'Eeek!' and tried to squirm away, but then he whispered in my ear, 'I'll stop if you want,' in this really husky, hot way. Once I realized he wasn't going to try to dive all the way in, I relaxed, and I found the extra pressure so hot. In fact, it made my orgasm 100 percent more intense."—Andrea, 26

'I didn't think I'd want anything back there...but I ended up liking it.'

Dancing on the Ceiling ✓

"I was having an affair with this guy, and one night after a party, we crashed at a friend's house with a whole bunch of other people. Everyone was passed out when he snuck over to the couch where I was sleeping and whispered, 'I'm going into the bathroom—follow me in five minutes.' I went in, and he lifted me up so I was lying back on the sink counter. He held my legs in the air while we went at it from the front. I swear to God, my feet were actually on the ceiling. There were a million reasons it was so hot . . . I was doing it upside down, I couldn't make any noise, and there was a mirror behind me so I could watch the whole thing. I can't even go to the bathroom there now without stopping to enjoy the memory."—Alex, 28

'I couldn't take my eyes off the mirror. I loved watching while we were doing it.'

Double Your Pleasure ✓

"One night I thought it would be our regular before-bed sex, but David unexpectedly asked me to tickle my pink. I'm usually uncomfortable doing that in front of him, but he said it would be a big turn-on. Little did I know he meant a turn-on for me. Right as I started to come, he licked a couple of fingers and started rubbing the base of my love button. All of a sudden I felt this second huge wave of orgasm. It was fantastic. We haven't been able to repeat it very often, but when we do . . . wow!"—Claire, 25

'Feeling my hands and his hands touching me all at once was incredible.'

Licked Off ✗

"I woke up one morning to feel light, tickling tongue flicks all over my lower back. It was incredibly erotic, so I leaned into it and started moaning. The guy, whom I'd taken home the night before, kept at it, but instead of heading south, he worked his way up around the side of my neck until he came to my face. Then he changed to long, flat, broad strokes . . . all over my face. My eyes! My nose! Gross! Not to mention that he had that morning-breath, sticky thing going on, so I felt like there was a trail of slime all over me. I got up, hurried him along, and then scrubbed my face for about 15 minutes in the shower. Yuck."—Noelle, 23

'Talk about acting like a dog—licking a girl's face is never a turn-on.'

Photographs, Scott Jones; styling, Anne Farbar; hair, Bret Strange (R.J. Bennett); makeup, Stacy Beneke (R.J. Bennett)

Bedside Backfire ✗

"I have trouble staying lubricated during sex, so I was happy when the guy I was seeing took the initiative to buy some K-Y and keep it by the bed. One morning we were spooning in bed when he reached over and squeezed out a handful of lube. I started arching into him and getting excited about what was coming next—until what came next went in my exit door. I yelled and jerked away so hard I actually fell off the bed. I'm not opposed to the idea of a booty bang, but I need a little notice. That is definitely not a good candidate for a surprise."—Erin, 30

'Any surprise attack involving the back door is a deal-breaker.'

Slippery When Wet ✗

"My boyfriend decided he wanted to have sex in the shower. I was excited about the change in venue, since we're usually so stuck in our routine. The soap made everything really slick, which definitely felt sexy, but all of a sudden he tried out some crazy lift-me-up move straight out of the Ice Capades. Next thing I know, he's slipping, we tumble, and we both wind up with bruised backs. Sex in the shower is fine, but save the advanced moves for when you're dry-docked."—Robin, 27

'Getting crazy with the sex venue works... unless it sends you to the ER.'

Rip Tide ✓

"I had been nagging my boyfriend to throw away this worn-out college T-shirt he slept in every night, so he suggested I wear it to bed to see how comfortable it was. The next morning we started fooling around and I shed my panties, but when I went to pull off the T-shirt, he stopped me. Then, right as we started to go at it really hot and sweaty, he grasped the thin material between my breasts and tore the T-shirt in two. The ripping sound, and being suddenly exposed, was erotic enough, but the realization that he was getting rid of the shirt in the hottest way possible nearly made me levitate. What can I say? He doesn't have many old T-shirts left anymore."—Wendy, 26

'Whenever I wear one of his old tees, I get a zing thinking of him ripping it off me.'

Press and Play ✓

"My ex was going down on me when he stopped and pressed the heel of his palm against my clit. It was so crazy! After all the focused tongue attention, it felt really sexy to have this different, wider pushing sensation. When he went back to what he was doing, I was even more sensitive than before, and pow, did I come! Even now, whenever I'm getting head, I say to myself, 'Gosh, why can't another guy master that?'"—Bethany, 24

'That little unexpected push made for the best oral sex I've ever gotten.'

Light My Fire ✓

"My college study-buddy and I had been flirting for weeks, so I knew what was going to happen when we decided to go on a spur-of-the-moment camping trip. But once we hit the sleeping bag, the tent was so dark, I couldn't even find the buttons on his Levi's. Like a good Boy Scout, though, he was prepared: He pulled out one of those little glow sticks that people use at raves. When he lit it up, it created this cool, otherworldly sex cocoon. After a few minutes of fun, he actually put the stick between our stomachs, so that as our bodies moved together and apart, it created this wild strobe effect in the exact rhythm of the sex. I can only imagine what it looked like from outside the tent!"—Monica, 23

'This toy gave a whole new meaning to the term afterglow.'

Caught on Tape ✗

"I'd always loved when my boyfriend tied my wrists with a silk scarf, but I wanted to try something a little more bondagey-feeling. He did some reading and found that duct tape was a pretty secure way to go. He unrolled the tape and lashed me to the bedposts, and we did our thing. It was great . . . until it came time to pull off the duct tape. It hurt like crazy, and the next day you could see these huge purple welts across my pale skin. Those were fun to try to explain at work! We're back to the scarf now."—Karen, 22

'We call it the Duct Tape Fiasco. After all, I had welts on my wrists for two days.'

Speak Easy ✓

"I'd started seeing this guy from work and we didn't want anyone in the office to find out about us, so we kept it on the down-low and really took our time getting to . . . know each other. When we finally did it, I was on top of him and he pulled me close and whispered, 'You feel so good riding my cock.' I'd never heard anything so sexual—especially from this guy, my sweet little ophthalmologist's assistant! It was a huge turn-on! He's still completely mild-mannered at work, so I always get a little shiver down my spine when I think about him saying such dirty things."—Lisa, 24

'I'll never forget the way this guy talked dirty to me. It was raunchy but hot.'

Let the Good Times Dole ✓

"A few Saturdays ago while we were watching TV, my boyfriend gave me this sneaky smile and handed me a pill. I figured it was Ecstasy—we'll pop one every now and then to make sex more intense. I trust him, so I shrugged and swallowed it, and an hour later I was on fire. Turns out he'd gotten a Viagra from one of his coworkers and split it with me instead of taking it all. He was harder than he's ever been, and we both had amazing orgasms. I kept going on my own for a few minutes after, and before I knew it, he was ready for another round. He was so right not to tell me what it was. I'd have been like, 'Who are you—Bob Dole?' and laughed at him. But . . . damn!"—Elizabeth, 25

'All I'll say is Viagra isn't just for guys!'

DIRTY TALK 101

Take a cue from our teacher's manual and your girl will be a XXX-talking honor student in no time.

"Mmm, tastes like chicken!"

LESSON 1: Practice your, ahem, diction. Tone is important in successful dirty talk because it sets the mood as much as the words you use. Rules of thumb: Drop your voice an octave or whisper to create a more confidential environment. Caution: Lower your voice too much and you'll sound like a pervy Darth Vader.

LESSON 2: Objectify the proposition. Girls like dirty talk, but you'll need to test limits first. Refer to breasts as "tits" or utter the F-word. If she likes it, unleash some more-explicit phrases. But "avoid using degrading terms," warns Yvonne Fulbright, author of The Hot Guide to Safer Sex, "or sounding like a horny truck driver."

LESSON 3: Dangle your modifiers. Now how the hell do you get her to mouth off? Ask her questions that will get her uttering a few lusty linguistics of her own: "Does this feel good?" "What else do you want me to do?" "How about we invite over your cute friend Sally?" OK, maybe not that last one, but you get it.

LESSON 4: Conjugate her verbs. Don't be afraid to put the words in her mouth. Say, "Tell me how much you love riding me," and she'll likely do just that. Once she's warmed up, ask her to be the naughty narrator describing the action. Now get cracking. You've got some homework to do, young man.

Just a Gigolo

Tom Burke* has his own CPA firm, a wife, and a kid. And for 35 years he's gotten paid for sex—over 300 women served! AS TOLD TO STEVEN CHEAN

The first time I got paid for sex, I was 12 years old. Her name was Janice—beautiful and 17, with a bad reputation. She lived a few blocks away from me just outside of Milwaukee. I bumped into her walking down the street, and we struck up a conversation. Then she invited me over to her house. Her mom was dead and her dad worked the night shift, so I knew we weren't going to be playing Yahtzee.

When we got to her place, she cracked open some beers. Before long we were in her bedroom. Hey, I didn't have a clue, but I let her take charge. Other neighborhood guys just used her for target practice; I asked her, "Does this feel good?"—she'd either say yes or direct me like a writhing traffic cop. She must've liked it, because on my way out she handed me a couple of six-packs. Every time we hooked up after that, there was payment connected to sex. She'd stuff money from her dad's sock drawer into my pockets, and I wouldn't complain.

The next thing I knew, I had a girl hooking me up with two of her sisters.

Janice suggested I "meet" three of her girlfriends who wanted oral sex. I was clear up front about payment for extras (like oral), but these girls had never had good head before. They must've been satisfied, because they gave me a good referral. The next thing I knew, a student named Mary hooked me up with her two sisters. By college I was handing out business cards with my name and number.

Customer servicing

I've bartended, worked construction, driven an ambulance, and now I own a small CPA firm. But through it all I've always moonlighted as a gigolo. I'm also married with a kid—anyone who's seen The Sopranos knows how to make relationships coexist with extracurricular activities. My services are spread by word of mouth, but my clients know how to be discreet. They either beep me or call my assistant at work to schedule an "appointment." Some are regulars that I see every month or so, and some are one-shot deals. Most are located in or around my hometown of Milwaukee, but I also have clients in L.A., New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and Philadelphia—cities I visit regularly on legit business.

Let me straighten out one thing: There's a difference between a male prostitute and a gigolo. A prostitute is just a stiff dick; you see them in sleazy ads that look like they're delivering pizza and a blow job. These guys usually swing both ways; they're lowlifes or junkies, and a woman's much better off with a fresh pack of batteries. A gigolo is more of a companion, a high-end male escort. Sex is just one part of the date, if at all. OK, almost always.

Most guys couldn't handle being a gigolo. They're too dumb to avoid talking about themselves, their accomplishments, how great they are. I really don't consider myself to be handsome; I've got good lats, good biceps, and ▶ frankly, a standard, non-porn-star dick. But my technique is simple: I focus on the woman. One of my regular clients is a 38-year-old pediatrician. I always ask how she's doing, how her job's going. I give her exactly what she wants, from the dinner conversation to the late-night activities behind closed doors. She calls the shots.

"Yes, ma'am, this is standard service in a four-star hotel."

Every woman is looking for a combination of three different men: a nice guy that listens to her, a sophisticated guy she can take to the opera, and a lusty guy that can make her head spin at 2 A.M. It sounds cheesy, but that's what I get paid for, and I get paid because most guys can't, or won't, do it for them.

Payment depends on how much work I put into the date. Older women usually know exactly what they want and cut to the chase, while younger women typically want me to plan the whole night—take them to the ballet, the symphony—so they pay more, from $100 to $250 an hour. But when the lights go out, I let them decide what the performance was worth. I've gotten as much as $500 for the deed itself. Sometimes I take gifts instead of cash. I was at a convention in Marina Del Rey, California last year when this big hitter's new bride I'd just "met" gave me a ring she'd bought for her new husband. I had it appraised: It was worth $12,000.

My clients range in age from 28 to 52, and they basically fall into two categories. One type is what you'd expect: the typical neglected soccer mom who's sick of being subservient to her husband. But the other type is strictly professional: PR agents to professors who don't have time to, well, screw around. One regular client is a psychiatrist who goes nuts listening to losers all day long. She can be tough, and she draws out the ex-Marine in me. She takes 20 minutes of full-out hammering until my knees give out.

You have to be prepared to accommodate all kinds. When I was in New York a few months ago, this crazy gal met me at a bar. We had ▶ some martinis, and she picked up the bill. After slipping me a few greenbacks, we took a carriage ride into Central Park. An hour later she stopped the coach, grabbed the whip from the driver, put me behind a tree, and lashed the hell out of me. I got paid nicely for that one.

I have standards. No matter how much money they offer, I'll never sleep with a woman I don't find attractive. A few years ago, I met an Englishwoman for coffee at a hotel in Milwaukee. When I sat down, I almost lost it. This woman was built like a bowl of jelly, hairier than hell, and more masculine than I was. After 20 minutes of small talk, I just couldn't go through with it. I had the concierge ring my cell phone, told the woman something had come up, and got the hell out of there. Another time a famous jazz singer's girlfriend showed up with another woman and some silk scarves to tie me up. I didn't feel comfortable, so instead we tied up her friend, and before I knew it she was doing her with a broomstick! I realized that if I'd let them tie me up, I'd be on the receiving end. Trust your instincts.

Hey, I've been doing this for a long time. In my younger days, I'd easily service four women a week; now I'm down to a couple of times a month. You may not believe it, but I've never gotten a client pregnant or brought home VD. . . knock on wood. The women I deal with are just normal chicks who are only getting it from their husbands, if that. And those guys are usually nothing to worry about. Back in junior high school, when the boyfriend of a girl I was "dating" found out about us, he and his buddies cornered me outside my school. Next thing I knew, my bottom teeth were sticking through my lip. I made doubly sure that from then on I'd be more discreet, so I'm always very careful to protect myself from jealous husbands.

I know what you're thinking: Don't I feel guilty about deceiving the people in my life? I honestly can't say that I do. I don't believe in reincarnation, so I decided a long time ago to cram as much into my one lifetime as I can. I live two separate lives. In one I have a wife and kid, and I do all I can to protect them. And in the other I make a lot of women very, very happy. M

DO HER YOURSELF

Eight tools to transform you into the James Bond of man-whores.

1. BUSINESS CARD
Spreading the word is key to a successful packaged product. Keep it simple: name, number, and suggestive slogan like STUD WITH HORSE COCK, READY TO ROCK YOUR STABLE. Also handy for entering free lunch drawings at Denny's.

2. BEEPER
Naturally, you've got to be on call at all times, ready to play doctor (or lascivious pirate captain) when her unsuspecting hubby goes out of town. Bonus: Set hers to "vibrate" mode and half your job is done!

3. MANICURE
Nothing says "amateur" like dirt under the nails. So get 'em clipped, cleaned, and buffed—but not painted, unless you want to end up catching a lift from Eddie Murphy.

4. DICTIONARY
Start spouting fancy words and her wallet and legs will open faster than you can say "giddyap." Does too much thinking hurt your brain? Channel Don King and add suffixes to your undersized lingo—she'll be ready for some nakedized seximization in no time.

5. COLOGNE
Nothing ticks off a steady-paying client more than getting a whiff of another client you just banged 20 minutes ago.

6. BLINDFOLD
For her if she's kinky. For you if she's beastly.

7. CONDOMS
Sex with strangers is like going to the carnival: Get the ball in the hole and you get a souvenir—like a kid or venereal disease. Apparently, some women find pustular sores on your tackle a turnoff. Go figure!

8. RECEIPT BOOK
You'd be surprised what services rich women can turn into tax write-offs.—Laura Leu

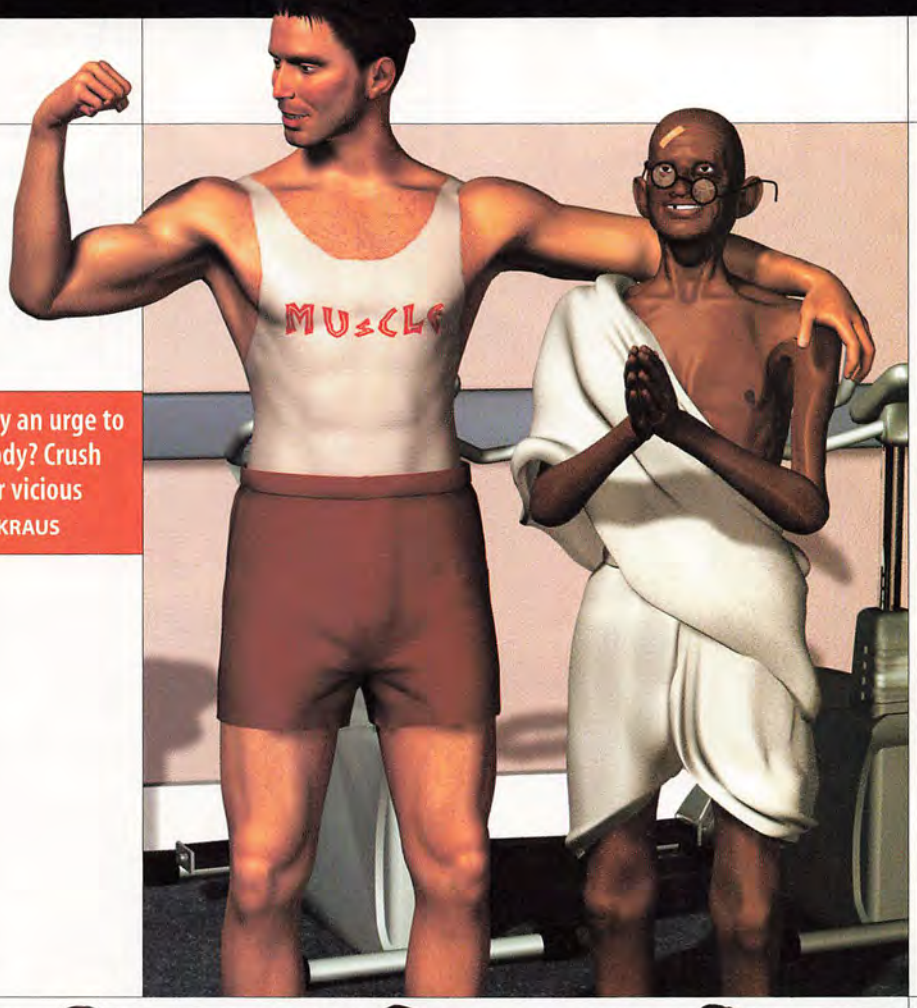
Maxim's Kick-Ass Workout



Looking for a killer workout? Haunted by an urge to beat the crap out of somebody...anybody? Crush two birds with one cheap shot using our vicious total-body training regimen. BY DANIEL KRAUS

It's a fact: Staying in shape kicks ass! Here's another: Kicking ass kicks ass! So why not combine the two? Add a few months to your life span by taking them from somebody else.

Don't blow your bucks on a gym membership when you can get the same results and a lot more satisfaction with a healthy regimen of violent assaults. We sought out the nation's top fitness, medical, and combat experts—along with a couple of really nasty drunks—to determine which irrational acts of violence create the most dynamic high-impact workout. It's time to channel your inner rage and get ripped! Uuunhhhh!

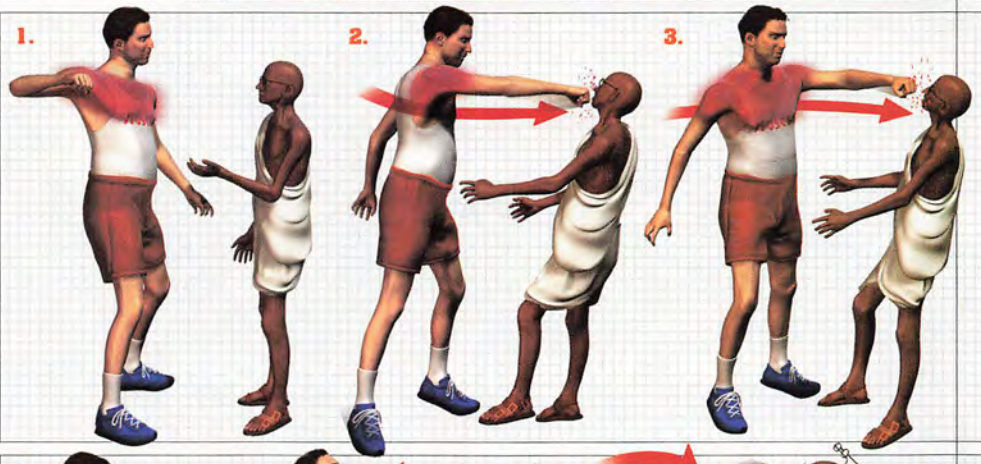
CHEST AND SHOULDERS

Teach those pacifists a lesson about aggression while you build your upper body.

Step 1: "Straight punching is great for your pecs and shoulders," says personal trainer Rebekah Marcano. So square off against your misguided peacenik opponent, feet shoulder width apart and parallel to each other.

Step 2: Extend your arm in a straight jabbing motion. "Bounce your fist off his face and quickly return to the ready position," says Marine Corps martial arts instructor Sgt. Kevin Weintraub.

Step 3: Repeat with opposite hand to ensure symmetry. Now go back to Step 2.



NECK AND BACK

Heads up! Nothing delivers a gaping head wound like an "ice hockey handshake."

Step 1: "Keep your feet square to your enemy's," says Weintraub. Now tell your future litigant you've got a special "secret" for him.

Step 2: Contracting your traps, tilt your head back 20 to 30 degrees and slam your upper forehead into the bridge of his nose. Well, howdy, neighbor!

Step 3: "Once you've butted him," says Marcano, "you'll really work those lats as well by pinching in with your elbows and grinding your head into his nose for a minute."

PUMPING TINSEL

Hollywood violence shows you how to build a huge body like Arnold (Schwarzenegger, not Tom).

GONE WITH THE WIND

The pain: After getting burned like Atlanta by Rhett Butler, Scarlett O'Hara bitch-slaps him with a perfect one-rep glove-smack to the face.
The gain: "It's a perfect rotator cuff workout," says physical therapist Michael Walsh. "Hold your upper arm parallel to the ground. Bend your elbow 45 degrees and follow through." Trust us, your workout buddy will love it.

LETHAL WEAPON

The pain: Mr. Joshua hangs Riggs from a chain, electrocuting his nipples. Ew-w-w!!!
The gain: "Electronic muscle stimulation is an increasingly popular toning technique," Walsh says. "The muscles are forced to rapidly expand and contract. Mr. Joshua probably gave Riggs the best workout he ever had."

THE MATRIX

The pain: Neo the neophyte rebel warrior takes the kind of stomach-pummeling only Keanu Reeves deserves.
The gain: "Why do those meatheads at the gym drop medicine balls on their stomachs?" asks Walsh. Uh . . . meatballs are too greasy? "No. Abdominal muscles contract in anticipation of impact, and that's better than sit-ups." Drop a rock on a fat, Speedo-sportin' Euro. We all win!

SOUTH PARK

The pain: Kyle boots his baby brother Ike through a closed window. Go-o-o-o-al!
The gain: "A well-executed kick is great for the legs," says Walsh. "If Kyle repeatedly launches his little brother in sets of 10, he'll have Anna Nicole's thighs in no time." God knows Anna's got plenty to spare.

HIPS AND HAMSTRINGS

Get a leg up on your opponent, Grasshopper!
Step 1: Center yourself, Daniel-san. "Squeeze your core muscles—glutes and abs—and set yourself firmly," says Marcano.
Step 2: Tighten your glutes and flex the hamstring in your striking leg while pivoting on your anchor leg.
Step 3: "Swing your hip to the side at least 180 degrees and deliver a sideways roundhouse kick to his face," says Marcano. "When you make contact, snap your foot back quickly, as if the object you're kicking is on fire." Beginners might want to actually set the dude on fire.

PECTORALS

Wring his neck and you'll strengthen your man-titties and your ego. Here's how:
Step 1: "Strangulation uses nearly every upper-body muscle," raves Marcano. Plant yourself directly over his chest, knees slightly bent. Work your eye muscles with a look of demented rage.
Step 2: With a straight back, bend down and attach hands to throat. Flex pecs profusely.
Step 3: "It may take three minutes for him to pass out," says Weintraub. So quickly ask Gandhi if he can see the change in your physique. No response? Keep working out.

SO REALISTIC, YOU'LL SWEAR YOU WERE THERE. The Rocky Mountains? Merely a speed bump. The Mojave Desert? A sandbox. The Black Forest? A flower garden. Welcome to an insanely realistic new world of offroad racing. 40 massive environments, more than 20 real-world ATVs, minigames, a hard-core soundtrack, plus intensely competitive online gameplay. So find yourself a comfortable chair, sit back and get ready, because it's gonna get dirty. BLAZE YOUR OWN TRAIL.™

LEGS AND BUTTOCKS

Work your butt while kicking butt. It's like jumping rope, just without the rope.

Step 1: Focus on his head. Then use it as your personal trampoline. "Glutes, hamstrings, quads, calves," says physical therapist Stacy Bly. "Mauling this guy's face is a full butt-and-thigh workout!"

Step 2: "Watch out for his buddies," says Weintraub. "Nobody fights fair anymore."

Step 3: "Target different muscles by altering your stance," adds Bly. "For example, pointing your toes out will work your groin muscles." So will furious masturbation, but you knew that.

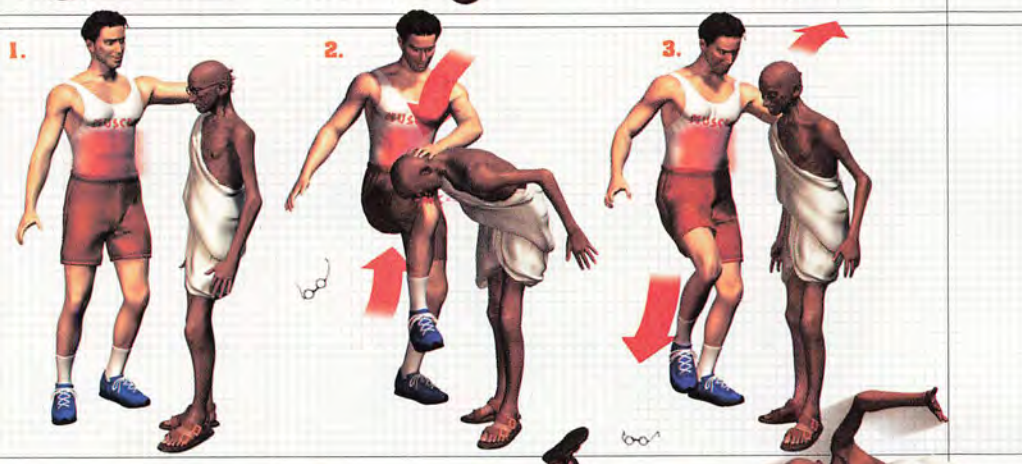
ABDOMINALS

Knee lifts that make contact with a guy's skull lead to tighter stomach muscles, pain, and unconsciousness. It's win-win-win, really.

Step 1: Grab offending putz by the head (watch out for slippery skulls!) or ears (watch out for slippery wax!) while establishing balance with knees slightly bent and shoulder width apart.

Step 2: Raising your right knee in a smooth motion, introduce his nose to your knee. "It works just like a classic crunch," says Marcano.

Step 3: Repeat on the right side. Continue this alternating motion till his face attains the consistency of oatmeal and you'll have rock-hard abs.



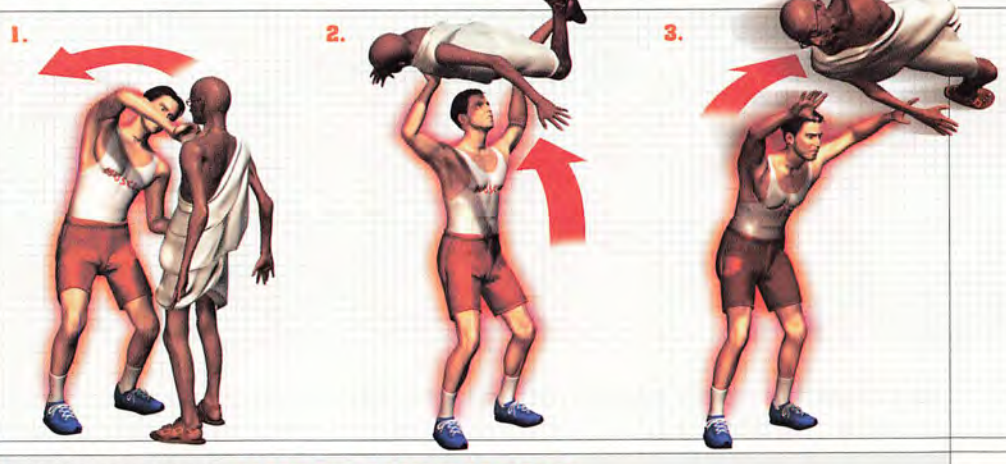
TOTAL BODY

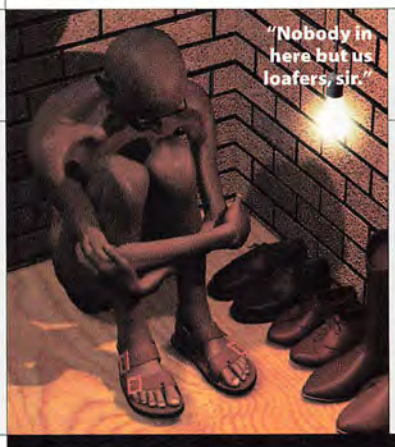
Hey, drop those donuts! We're not through yet! Finish with a bang by tossing this weenie over the bar and into that lovely wineglass display.

Step 1. Concentrate on flexing your hamstrings and glutes. "It's like a dead lift," says Marcano. "Set your knees shoulder width apart, stick your butt out, and lift with your legs," says Bly.

Step 2. Position your hands on the middle of his back and on his butt. Enjoy the moment—but not too much. Feel those biceps sing.

Step 3. Shot-put the dude like a pile of dirty diapers. For aerobic cool-down, run before cops arrive.





THE TOTAL WIMP WORKOUT

Lots of people run to add years to their lives. But hiding and crying work, too!

RUN

Running is not just a great cardiovascular and lower-body workout—it can also build your sternocleidomastoid (neck) muscles. Here's how: In mid-flee, continually rotate your head to see the girl chasing you. Just remember to turn equally over your left and right shoulders and you'll have a neck like Tyson's. Unfortunately, you'll still be a pussy.

HIDE

Once you've found a dark space to crawl into, it's time to start toning. First, hit the floor and tightly hug your knees in the fetal position. With your glass chin tucked to your chest, tighten your arms around your legs like the time your mommy tried to take away Malibu Ken. Be sure to concentrate equally on your fear and the contraction of your biceps.

CRY

While you're collapsing yourself into a tiny shuddering ball, cry like a kid enjoying his first rectal thermometer and you'll complete this total-body workout. Believe it or not, sobbing uncontrollably helps work the abs. Don't believe us? Check out Tammy Faye Bakker's six-pack. Washboard city, dudes—that sister is ripped!

THE NEXT BIG THING

DEVIL'S ADVOCATE

Believe your eyes: Ben Affleck blindsides the superhero biz in Daredevil.

How often do comic book fans get to pull on the tights of their favorite hero? Nerdy role-playing games aside, they don't. Unless that comic book fan happens to be Ben Affleck. "When I was a kid, Daredevil was my favorite," he says. "If there was ever a superhero that I wanted to play, this was it."

Following in the multimillion-dollar footsteps of X-Men and Spider-Man, this month's Daredevil brings to the big screen one of Marvel Comics' oddest crime fighters—he can't even see his opponents. "This boy is blinded in an accident, but the rest of his senses become superhuman," explains Affleck. "Then his father is murdered, so he spends his life avenging him." But is a blind superhero a tough sell, especially one without a Spidey- or Batman-size profile? "It's not a presold movie," Affleck admits, "but you've got this character with real vulnerabilities whom audiences will connect with. Daredevil's not all-powerful—he goes home at night and pops painkillers."

And sometimes the lucky devil goes home with Jennifer Garner (Alias), who plays his love interest/sparring partner, Elektra. Says Affleck, "There was always this sexy element to the comic book. That's why I got into it as a 15-year-old. Daredevil's hopping into bed with these hot superhero chicks! In his civilian life, he falls in love with this woman, but in his costumed identity he ends up fighting her. [snickers] It's kind of representative of some of my prior relationships."

So how the hell does one act blind around the stunning Garner? "She's somebody around whom, if you were really blind, you'd be missing out more than normal," confirms Affleck. "She's gorgeous. And she shames me every day when we train for the fight scenes."

She might not be the only one. Daredevil faces a ruthless crime boss named the Kingpin (the hulking Michael Clarke Duncan) and a nutjob supervillain called Bullseye (a bald Colin Farrell). "We've trained so hard," says Affleck. "It's been like making two and half action movies at once."

With a ball-busting schedule, intense fan scrutiny, and the Spider-gauntlet thrown down at the box office, the superhero heat is on. "Yeah," says Affleck, "but the only real pressure is from my 15-year-old self, who'd never forgive me if I made a shitty Daredevil movie."—Eric Alt

	Biker Boyz (DreamWorks) Release date: January 31	Laurence Fishburne, Larenz Tate, Orlando Jones	It's a two-wheeled Fast and the Furious as outlaw motorcycle racers burn rubber on the Cali backstreets. The z must mean it's "urban" and "edgy."	These biker boyz give a lift to some hot biker girlz. High-speed crotch-rocket wrecks will make you believe in helmet lawz—er, laws.	Recycled. But the intense racing action still might get some motors running.
	Shanghai Knights (Touchstone) Release date: February 7	Jackie Chan, Owen Wilson	What's zanier than a Chinese palace guard teaming up with a cowboy? A Chinese palace guard and a cowboy in Old London! Wait…where are you going?	We're willing to bet Chan kicks someone.	Chop-sucky. It's no Shanghai surprise that these two have cranked out one buddy movie too many—this is the sequel nobody was waiting for.
	How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days (Paramount) Release date: February 7	Matthew McConaughey, Kate Hudson	A womanizer bets his pals he can stay in a relationship for more than 10 days. 	Daredevil (20th Century Fox) Release date: February 14	Ben Affleck, Jennifer Garner, Colin Farrell, Michael Clarke Duncan	A blind dude living in a tough N.Y.C. neighborhood does the logical thing: Grabs a costume and a cane and starts tossing supervillains off rooftops.	Garner gives us a jolt as the tight-leather-clad Elektra, and DD himself definitely isn't handicapped in hand-to-hand combat.	We double-dog dare you to miss it. Darker and grittier than Spider-Man…and did we mention Garner in tight leather packaging?
	Old School (DreamWorks) Release date: February 21	Luke Wilson, Vince Vaughn, Will Ferrell	Not happy with how their "adult" lives are turning out, three thirty-something guys try to recapture college glory by—toga! toga!—starting their own frat. THE RECRUIT

Head counselor Al Pacino takes you deep inside CIA summer camp.

You expect certain things from spy movies: gadgets, babes, and enough cloak-and-dagger thrills to hold your interest. The Recruit—starring Al Pacino and Colin Farrell—delivers despite a plot about as predictable as the path of Gene Simmons' zipper. A young hotshot spy (Farrell) gets personally invited into an elite CIA training program by a shady "talent scout" (Pacino). In the best sequences, Farrell and his fellow JV agents are taken to a hush-hush facility known as the Farm, a twisted mental boot camp that separates ordinary folks from globe-trotting spooks. But the double- and triple-crosses don't end after graduation, as Farrell tackles a troubling first assignment while wrestling with the haunting memory of his dead father and a nagging urge to bed Bridget Moynahan. (See? You can relate.) Farrell turns in a performance that hints at why he's been cast in everything save your home movies, and Pacino is, well, Pacino. He's over the top, but you gotta admit that Pacino going ballistic is about the most entertaining thing around. The Recruit may not be in the same league as Bond, but as a tense, entertaining spy thriller, it's worth dragging your Aston to. (January 31, Touchstone)

"Egg McMuffin. Boo-ya!"

"So then, when does the hazing begin?"

FLICK FLACK

FRAT BASTARDS

Greek life isn't all keggers and goat-sex initiations, thanks to brothers like these.

The upcoming Old School reminds us that for every Bluto and D-Day, there are dozens of Hollywood frat daddies who are more insufferable snob than lovable slob. So break out your pledge paddle; it's time to haze our favorite Greek stinkers.

DOUG NEIDERMEYER

(Mark Metcalf,* Animal House, *1978) To some the Deltas' sworn nemesis is a privileged young snob. To others he is the embodiment of the conservative right. Anyway, he's a dick. Hell week: His beloved steed gets chain-sawed, and he gets plowed by a runaway parade float. Solemn oath: "You're all worthless and weak! Now drop and give me 20!"

RAND McPHERSON

(David Spade,* PCU, *1994) Heads the "Balls & Shaft" society at Port Chester University, offering sanctuary to pigeon-chested preppies. Hell week: Humiliated by "Pit" prez Droz (Jeremy Piven)—and nothing's worse than being slagged by a 40-year-old playing a college student. Solemn oath: "Mayflower material, I presume? It's a boat. Your ancestors obviously didn't come over on it."

RICHARD BAGG

(Daniel Cosgrove,* Van Wilder, *2002) He's priggish and repressed, but it's his constant use of medical jargon that makes us want to haze him with a brick. Hell week: Gets humbled by the hero (and by "humbled," we mean "tricked into eating bulldog-semen-filled eclairs"). Solemn oath: "That's my girlfriend, gluteus erecti!"

STAN GABLE

(Ted McGinley,* Revenge of the Nerds, *1984) All-American Greek Council douchebag Stan makes life miserable for geeks, dweebs, spazzes, and, um, whatever the hell Booger is. Hell week: First he gets harangued by his football coach while wearing a dress. Then he discovers that his girlfriend has a little geek in her. Solemn oath: "Those nerds are a threat to our way of life!"

GEORGE W. BUSH

(President, 2001–present) Not a member of the nonexistent Skull & Bones fraternity that is in no way affiliated with Yale University. Hell week: While not attending an S&B mixer, Pledge Dubya didn't get sloppy drunk and brag about being "commando-in-chief" one day. Solemn oath: "We must all hear the universal call to like your neighbor just like you like to be liked yourself."

Microsoft on Ice wasn't a big hit with the kiddies

EJECTION SEAT

THE RENTS

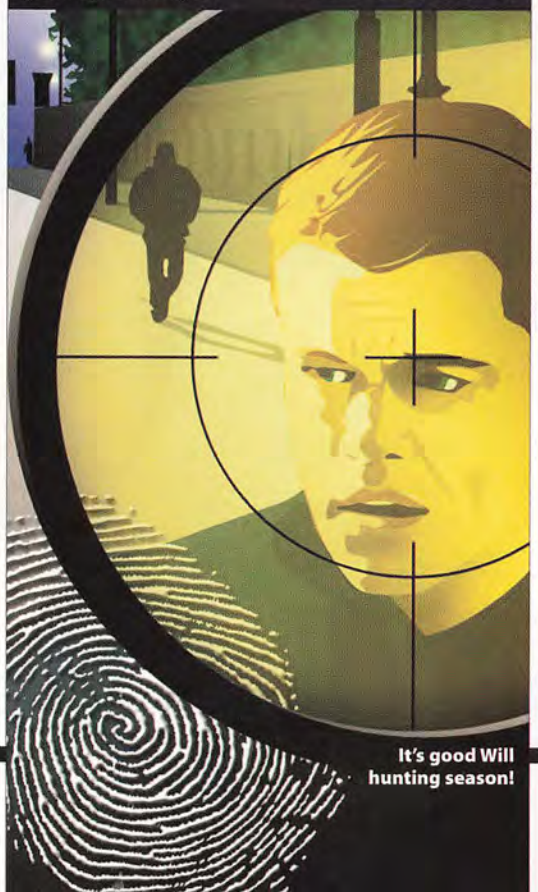
C'mon, do you really want advice from the geek at the video store?

The Bourne Identity Matt Damon plays a spy who forgets boring stuff like his name but remembers cool stuff like how to incapacitate assassins with a pen! That special something: An alternate ending where...we can't remember! (January 21)

My Big Fat Greek Wedding We hate to burst your bubble, pal, but watching this sleeper hit chick-flick comedy does not qualify as you and your girlfriend "doing Greek." That special something: Um, it's a merciful 95 minutes long? (February 11)

One Hour Photo The creepiest thing to happen to photography since your high school yearbook. Robin Williams goes for gasps, not laughs, as a snapshot-obsessed stalker. That special something: Audio commentary from Williams. It's great, but just try turning it off. (February 18)

The Master of Disguise Dana Carvey takes a stab at Mike Myers–like solo movie success, with mixed results. For example, some jokes are harmlessly awful, some are maddeningly God-awful. That special something: Carvey does a running commentary in character as "the Turtle Guy." And you thought watching the movie with the sound off would improve the experience. (January 28)



It's good Will hunting season!

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS GIRL?

BIKER CHICK

Real name: Nadine Velazquez

Better known as: Larenz Tate's high-performance girlfriend, Allison, in the crotch-rocket action flick Biker Boyz. (Jan. 31)

Her story: Biker Boyz boasts flashy motorcycles, fierce racing, and even an explosion or two—so why the hell can't we get over the image of Nadine Velazquez? "The most dangerous thing I do in the movie," says the sultry beauty, "is bend over and get a tattoo on my ass." (Any more questions?) Before this gorgeous Chicago native elegantly pressed ham on the silver screen, she found acting inspiration in…Punky Brewster? "Punky was my age," she explains. "I thought, Hey, I can do that!" Eventually, the daughter of Puerto Rican immigrants scored some modeling gigs and began honing her acting chops in commercials and local Hispanic theater productions. After moving to L.A., Nadine quickly landed back-to-back roles in the romantic comedy Chasing Papi ("I play the only girl who can steal a boy from Sofía Vergara") and Biker Boyz, which she swears is going to be "a wild, fun movie." Thank you, ma'am—may we have another?

'I'd love to kick somebody's ass in a movie instead of somebody threatening to kick mine.'

PHISH

Round Room (Elektra)

When Phish announced that they were going on "extended hiatus" in 2000, it looked like their devotees might have to drown their sorrows in chai tea and bear it. Not to fear, though—Phish's idea of an "extended hiatus" ain't that extended after all. Their latest plays like a gift to die-hard Phishheads who've nonetheless been anxiously awaiting their return. While 2000's Farmhouse tightened the band's meandering, eclectic folk-rock, Round Room finds head-bobbing, freewheeling jams getting free rein, which should thrill fans and soft-drug aficionados alike. Muscular, bluesy guitar licks and a roadhouse piano give "46 Days" a rough-and-tumble Allmans-like spirit, and the loose-limbed "Pebbles and Marbles" chugs along for nearly 12 minutes without losing the plot. Inevitably, the noodling does go overboard: "Waves" sounds like the Peanuts theme after too many bong hits. Overall, it seems Phish weren't struggling to reinvent themselves during their vacation; they were merely refueling for their own long, strange trip.—David Peisner

Nada Surf
Let Go (Barsuk)

Nada Surf got a raw deal: When they followed their 1996 hit "Popular" by promptly disappearing, they were branded a one-hit wonder. But not only are they still around, they're pretty damn good. Their third album hardly reinvents the wheel—it simply alternates moody guitar-pop (think Coldplay without the Radiohead fixation) with buzzing rockers (think Weezer without the metal fixation), and does it well. Granted, they sorely test our goodwill by singing a song in French ("La Pour Ça"), but we like Let Go enough to let it slide. This time.—D.P.

Jesse Malin
The Fine Art of Self-Destruction (Artemis)

If you know Malin as the frontman for glam-punks D-Generation, you don't know shit about him, apparently. His solo debut recasts him as an urban roots rocker in the Ryan Adams mold—not coincidentally, since Adams produces and plays on the record. Though too earnest by half, Malin careens from alt-country laments to Replacements-inspired blowouts, hitting all points in between with equal fervor. And with a crack band, he reaffirms a lesson we learned from demolition derby: Self-destruction can be dang cool.—Victor Blair

Lou Reed
The Raven (Sire/Reprise)

Our first reaction to The Raven—Lou Reed's two-disc set of music and dramatic readings inspired by goth poster boy Edgar Allan Poe—was a resounding "What the fuck was that?" In fact, that was also our second, third, and fourth reaction. You can't accuse Lou of resting on his laurels, but despite some impressively soulful new songs and contributions from, among others, David Bowie and Willem Dafoe, The Raven flaps furiously toward self-parody. With Reed so consumed by avant-garde ambitions, we'll be listening to this disc...nevermore.—D.P.

We're a Happy Family
A Tribute to the Ramones (DV8/Columbia)

Everyone loves the Ramones—average schlubs who wrote two-minute punk songs and changed rock forever. Here a parade of platinum rockers pay homage with covers that are rarely less than OK but only seldom more. The good stuff? U2's lighthearted "Beat on the Brat" and Eddie Vedder's fiery "I Believe in Miracles" with Seattle thrashers Zeke. The bad? Metallica's unimaginative "53rd & 3rd" and Pete Yorn's limp "I Wanna Be Your Boyfriend." The mediocre? Unfortunately, everything else.—D.P.

Cat Power
You Are Free (Matador)

Some will come to Cat Power's fifth album because of heavyweight guest stars like Eddie Vedder and Dave Grohl. That's cool. They'll come back because Chan Marshall, the quirky singer-songwriter who pens eerie folk-rock as Cat Power, is the real deal. On the twangy "Good Woman," a mournful electric guitar jousts with a violin as Vedder's trademark moan backs Marshall's own chilling warble. Elsewhere, power chords rough up "Free" and a spare piano creeps through the stunning "Evolution." It seems everything this Cat drags in is worth keeping.—D.P.

Supergrass
Life on Other Planets (Island)

We'll say this about the White Hive Strokes trend: At least pop has been rescued from dancing weenies and returned to pasty Kinks fans who actually play guitar. By this logic garage stalwarts Supergrass should be as big here as in their native England. Though their fourth album lacks the frenzy of 1995's I Should Coco, "Never Done Anything Like That Before" is ridiculously catchy, while singer Gaz Coombes channels glam godfather Marc Bolan on "Za." Classic rock for kids who don't like classic rock—or who won't admit it.—Steve Kandell

Nick Cave and the Bad Seeds
Nocturama (Anti-)

Sure, postpunk crooner Cave likes to wallow neck-deep in angst. On his latest, though, it's clear this brooding prince of darkness still has the will to rock out. He's hardly getting all sunshine-and-unicorns on us, but on Nocturama, his usual parade of harrowing, theatrical ballads gets a welcome kick in the ass. A wicked guitar groove and Cave's million-dollar snarl put some punch in "Bring It On," and "Dead Man in My Bed" delivers a riotous, organ-fueled racket that suggests this old guy ain't going gentle into any good night.—D.P.

TALES FROM THE ROAD

CRAIG DAVID

The smooth R&B singer ain't slicker than your average—around groupies.

"We were in Australia, and it was the end of the tour. We finished off and went down to the bar, and I ordered tequila for everybody. I kept ordering to the point where we actually dried out the whole supply. So they brought out these other shots called slippery nipples, which we then did for a while. Eventually, they had to close the bar because there were no drinks left at all, really. So we went to this club, where I started DJ-ing. I was out there dancing, and I think people were surprised—I had just performed at this thing where there were 100,000 people. But when I'm in a club, I go there to have a good time, not to be all up in the corner with bouncers around me. Anyway, there was this girl who was really on my case the whole night. I was like, 'Yo, I'm not really into that whole one-night-stand, meaningless sex thing, but if you want to call me, then here's my number. Call me.' I got back to the hotel room, and she called me as soon as I got there, saying, 'Oh, man, where are you? I want to come around now and just get down to business.' But I was so hammered that I screwed up and gave her the name of some other hotel completely on the other side of Melbourne from where I was staying. All I know is, I woke up the next morning with nothing but a hangover. I don't know where she ended up going. I don't think we're the best of friends right now."—as told to David Peisner

DEAD OR ALIVE XTREME BEACH VOLLEYBALL

(Tecmo—Xbox)

"Oh, no! I'm a sexy kung fu babe stuck on a tropical island—what ever will I do? Plan an elaborate escape? Fight dangerous natives? No, silly, I'm going to play volleyball in an ass-floss bikini, that's what." In this bizarre amalgam of Barbie's Malibu Beach House and ESPN2, you play as the female characters from Tecmo's popular fighting game Dead or Alive 3—only now the chop-socky bunnies are more interested in spiking balls than kicking them. The sharp graphics and advanced jiggle physics will no doubt prick the interest of lonely gamers, but surprisingly, the game's volleyball action is pretty solid. And that's the most important thing…right?—Alex Porter

If you think the Rock and his juiced-up ilk need a good ol' fashioned squash-in', step on up to War of the Monsters. Take control of Godzilla-size radioactive insects, apes, and reptiles, and body-slam your creature opponents around highly detailed scale models of entire cities (including—eeekkk—Tokyo!). The battles themselves are chaotically free-for-all, allowing up to four monsters to grapple hand-to-hand and even rip up handy lampposts, buildings, and cars to bludgeon enemies. Although that famous Japanese fire lizard doesn't actually make an appearance (he's got his own game), War of the Monsters has a B-movie feel that'll evoke those great Sunday-afternoon matinees—if you can smell what the colossal mutant cockroach is cooking.—A.P.

Indiana Jones and the Emperor's Tomb

(LucasArts—PlayStation 2, Xbox, PC)

Since Spielberg, Lucas, and Ford can't seem to dust off Indy's fedora and start shooting a fourth Jones movie, we have to settle for LucasArts' Tomb Raider–esque video game version. With memories of Short Round dancing through his head, Indy travels all over Asia in search of an elusive relic called the Heart of the Dragon. And, in typical Indy fashion, he's trying to stay one step ahead of Nazi scum the whole time. Despite the occasionally clunky controls, Emperor's Tomb does impress with its hand-to-hand brawls (Ms. Croft would be lost without her weapons) and the free-range exploration allowed within levels. It's not a big-time cinematic thrill ride, but it'll do. Trust us.—Scott Steinberg

RAPPING KNUCKLES

MAMA SAID KNOCK YOU OUT

Def Jam isn't out to stop the violence, just to make it a lot more fun.

It's no secret that a huge part of hip-hop's popularity is built on intense rivalries and mama-dissing smack talk. So wouldn't you love to see these musical foes ditch the gats, put their money where their big mouths are, and go toe-to-toe? Def Jam Records, partnered with Electronic Arts, has made that happen with Def Jam Vendetta, a game in which the label's top artists—DMX, Redman, Ludacris, and others—square off WWE-style, complete with kicks, punches, chokes, and unique "finishing moves." "In mine," says Wu-Tang Clan's Method Man, "I pick a dude up, back-break him, then brain-bust him. They didn't make me a sucka." He and label mates contributed music and, more importantly, trash talk. "It's a lot of 'fuck that' and 'I'll kick ya ass,'" Mr. Man explains through an ever-present cloud of sweet-smelling smoke. Better start working on rhymes for ouch. (Def Jam Vendetta will be hitting the streets for the PlayStation 2 and GameCube this March)—A.P.

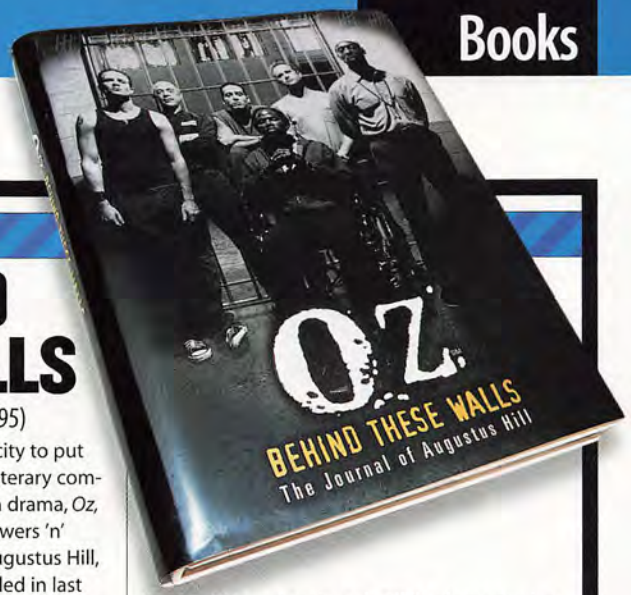
TEXT APPEAL

OZ: BEHIND THESE WALLS



By Tom Fontana (HarperCollins, $29.95)

Props to HBO for having the audacity to put the word Behind in the title of this literary companion to its anus-imperiling prison drama, Oz, now entering its final season of showers 'n' shivs. Presented as the journal of Augustus Hill, the paraplegic narrator who was killed in last year's finale, this odd souvenir falls somewhere between The Sopranos Cookbook and the Six Feet Under Guide to Home Embalming on the spectrum of shrewd tie-ins. This riot-filled recount of each episode's backstabbings, and frontstabbings, is written in Hill's wizened voice, so the book is just as intriguing for new fish as it is for lifers looking to take one last nostalgic stroll through the old cellblock.—Steve Kandell

Liberty

By Stephen Coonts (St. Martin's Press, $25.95)

Coonts' regular protagonist, Jake Grafton, must stop Islamic extremists from detonating nukes on U.S. soil, using wit, resolve, and… managerial skills? Liberty was inspired by the 9/11 attacks, which proved that our enemies are among us, not conveniently assembled in a foreign HQ. So instead of the one-man-army routine, Grafton organizes a task force, attends meetings, and makes a ton of calls. Although frighteningly realistic, the excitement level is minimal, because bank account snooping can't compete with dropping daisy cutters on terrorist camps. Liberty's destined to be an equally predictable movie. Naked Vinyl

By Tim O'Brien and Mike Savage (Universe, $22.50)

Areolae abound in this collection of naughty "bachelor album cover art" compiled by vinylphiles O'Brien and Savage, with nekked retro beauties striking come-hither poses for disco, comedy, and stag-party records from the '50s through the '80s. But this isn't just flagrant flesh-peddling; each sleeve includes text discussing the eroticism of the music itself and even the [snicker] social significance of the art. The innuendo runs rampant, but if you stress the kitsch value, your gal might not care that it has more breasts than Frank Perdue.—Laurina Gibbs

JIMMY KIMMEL

The Man Show star and former pigskin prognosticator is bravely tossing his empty six-pack into the vicious late-night talk-show ring. Lotsa luck, sucker!

QUICK PICKS

DESSERT: Banana cream pie. "I like all banana-related desserts. Basically, when it comes to desserts, bananas are the number one fruit."

PORN STAR: Ron Jeremy. "He would never have sex without paying if he was a civilian, and yet he's a famous porn star. God bless him."

EUPHEMISM FOR MASTURBATION: Rubbing Rob Reiner. "I made that up, but he doesn't know about it. So don't tell him."

Your new ABC talk show goes up against Letterman, Leno, Conan, and Kilborn. Care to settle things with a loser-leave-town cage match?
Y'know, probably every one of those guys could beat me up. Kilborn's a big fella, so are Leno and Conan. But I was a Letterman fanatic in high school, so if he punched me in the face, I'd just politely thank him.

Any plans to serve free beer to the people in your audience like you guys do on The Man Show?
Yeah, we've got a bar in the entryway. There's a waiting area where the audience gathers before the show. People laugh a lot harder when they're drunk.

Aren't you worried about drunken brawls breaking out?
If they do, they do. It certainly happened on The Man Show. But I like that kind of stuff. Really, is there anything you'd rather watch than two drunk guys fistfighting live on TV?

Hmm…just monkey Roller Derby. Speaking of which, you constantly made fun of Terry Bradshaw and Howie Long on Fox NFL Sunday. How close did you come to being used as their tackling dummy?
I don't know if Howie really would have punched me, but there was one time I think he almost grabbed my neck and shoved me against the wall. Those guys did get genuinely mad sometimes.

You have a great record for picking winners. Since this interview is being conducted before the Super Bowl, but won't run until after it, do you care to make a prediction?
The Bengals may be 1-10 right now, but I think they're going to turn things around. So I'm picking the Bengals to go all the way!

Did you ever actually play football?
No. When I was 17, I weighed 136 pounds. So I played clarinet in the marching band.

You're originally from Las Vegas. What's the best part about growing up in Sin City?
There's this place downtown with a full steak dinner—steak, salad, baked potato, roll—for two dollars. I must've eaten that meal 1,000 times. My buddies and I once went 30 times in a row.

Any bizarre, only-in-Vegas moments?
Well, one time my marching band was hired to go to Wayne Newton's house at 7 A.M. and play "Happy Birthday" for him. Also, we used to take fire extinguishers, the kind that shoot water, and soak tourists on the strip. It's the funniest goddamn thing you've ever seen. There was a point where me and my friend Cleto Escobedo—who may be the bandleader on my show—we were addicted to it. We would do it on the way to school, during lunchtime, after school, and then again at night.

Is that why you dropped out of UNLV and Arizona State?
That's not true. I transferred from UNLV to ASU, and then I dropped out. Unless you want a job that requires you to go to college, like a doctor, there's no reason to go to college. I started in radio by walking into a station and saying, "I'm here to learn." Not that I have any regrets…except that I wish I hadn't wasted all those years.

When you were on Win Ben Stein's Money, did you ever just take any of it out of his wallet?
No, I didn't. But Ben is a real celebrity in that he has everything taken care of for him. I'm not sure he even brought a wallet to work. And even if he did, it was probably chained to a security guard.

Is your Man Show co-host, Adam Carolla, pissed that you've been called up to the big leagues without him?
No, he's not. People think we're joking when we say this, but Adam is really lazy. I dragged him into working on The Man Show—I drag him into everything. He's actually kind of relieved not to do this one with me.

Do you think ABC sees the irony in your replacing Bill Maher, whom they fired for being too politically incorrect?
I think they fired him because they sell advertising, and they were having trouble selling ads. I believe in free speech very strongly, but your job on TV is to sell commercials, and anybody who thinks different is kidding himself. I'm not going to talk about any things that are important, for no other reason than I don't feel qualified. And I'm not really interested in them. What's important to me is watching football. I don't give a crap about Donald Rumsfeld.

Yeah, but still, what do you think of the French?
I'm more disgusted with the French every day. People think it's a joke, but I went to Paris last summer, and they really hate us. It's unbelievable that you can spend $150 in a restaurant, and they're still not nice. And I understand that they think they're better than us, but if you smell them you'll know that's not the case.

If you could pick any woman to jump on a trampoline, who would it be?
You'd think I'd go for the sexiest woman, but I'm more interested in comedy than girls, so I'd pick Barbara Bush. That would be an achievement. Or Barbara Walters. Or anyone named Barbara, for that matter.

OK, time for some manly questions. Are you one of those guys who name their body parts?
No, absolutely not. I never felt the need to name my penis. But my penis has a name for me. It calls me Jim.

Do you ever have that, you know, "not so fresh" feeling?
All the time. I'm actually a lunatic with flossing and clipping my nails. I'm constantly grooming myself. I don't know if it's diagnosable, but it's definitely not natural.

When are you most womanly?
When I put on a pair of panties and then go walk around the mall.

What's the best thing a man can do for a woman?
Serious answer: Respect her. Comedy answer: Try not to get it in her hair.

Carreño commandments: "My man has to know how to dance salsa. As far as looks, I fall for skinny men with thin necks and nice muscle definition. Chest hair is a definite deal breaker."
Bald ambition: "I live for action movies, which is why I love Bruce Willis so much. I also adore Ed Norton. I loved his bald head in American History X. And Vin Diesel, wow! I guess I like bald men in general."
Miss-ogynist: "I have more male friends than female ones because women are too concerned with sentimental things in life. Also, many of the women are jealous. It's a sickness. I choose to spend my time with men. They're much calmer and clearer in the way they think."
When models attack: "I remember once, while working in Mexico, a man grabbed me on the street, pushed me up against a wall, and started touching me all over. But I made him pay for it. I grabbed his hair and clawed his eyes with my nails, and he ran away in agony."

What's my motivation? "When I'm supposed to come off as sexy in a shoot, I try to think about a situation so I can get the real look on my face. For Maxim shoots I imagine there's a guy in front of me. It actually turns me on when I'm doing it, because I'm trying to act sexy." Act?
Living single: "I've been single for a year and haven't dated much. I've been busy. My friends are really worried about how I'm going to meet a guy." We have a couple of suggestions...
Ain't misbehavin': "I don't like to party. I live with a couple of girls, so sometimes I do, but I prefer watching movies and relaxing. I don't like to drink too much. But sometimes... sometimes..." Can we buy you a beer?
Made for each other: "I think women are beautiful, but I personally like men." And we like women—look at that!

My relationships in the U.S. have resulted in misunderstandings. I dated this big-shot actor—can't say his name. He would promise to call me at 7 P.M. and then call at 9 P.M. I'd flip out. We split up."
Hair today, gone tomorrow: "I will not date a guy with lots of hair everywhere. It's like, go get a wax, dude."
Date with disaster: "I've had so many bad dates. I think the worst was with this guy who illegally parked his car and got a ticket. He was so freaked about the $35 ticket that I offered to pay for the dinner and movie. He said OK."
Foreplay is forewarned: "Men need to prepare us for sex. If you leave out the dinner, the talk, and the other things that help relax a girl, then forget it. A girl can tell when a guy is thinking only about himself in bed. It's a major buzz kill."

hot spot

the inside story on healthy sex

by Jamie Ireland

Learning "The Ropes"...

This month I got a letter from a reader in Texas, about a "little secret" that has made her love life with her husband absolutely explosive. (Those Texans know their stuff, let me tell you.)

Tina writes:

Dear Jamie,

Last month, my husband returned from a business trip in Europe, he was hotter and hornier than ever before, with more passion and sexual energy than he'd had for years. It was incredible. He flat wore me out! And the best part of all—he was having multiple orgasms. I know what you're thinking... men don't have multiples. That's what I thought, too. But his newfound vigor and excitement stimulated me, too, and before we knew it, we were both basking in the glow of the best sex of our lives.

We'd tried tantric stuff in the past, and the results were so-so. But this was something new and exciting, completely out of the ordinary. I asked my husband what had created such a dramatic change in our lovemaking, and he told me he'd finally learned "the ropes."

On the last night of his business trip, my husband spent an evening dining out with a Swedish nutritionist and his wife of 20 years. The couple was obviously still quite enamored with each other, so my husband asked their secret. The nutritionist told him their sex life was more passionate than ever. Then he pulled a small bottle from his satchel and gave it to my husband.

The bottle contained a natural supplement that the nutritionist told my husband would teach him "the ropes" of good sex.

My husband takes the supplement every day. The supply from the nutritionist is about to run out, and we desperately want to know how we can find more. Do you know anything about "the ropes," and can you tell us how we can find it in the States?

Sincerely,
Tina C.
Ft. Worth, Texas

Tina, you and the rest of our readers are in luck, because it just so happens I do know about the ropes, and the supplement your husband's Swedish friend likely shared.

The physical contractions and fluid release during male orgasm can be multiplied and intensified by a product called Mioplex Pure Extract. It's a supplement specially formulated to trigger better orgasmic experiences in men. The best part, from a woman's perspective, is that the motion and experience a man can achieve with Mioplex Pure Extract can help stimulate our own orgasms, bringing a whole new meaning to the term simultaneous climax.

The term used by the Swedish nutritionist is actually fairly common slang for the effect your husband experienced. The enhanced contractions and heightened orgasmic release are often referred to as ropes because of the rope-like effect of release during climax. In other words, as some people have said, "it just keeps coming and coming."

As far as finding it in the States, I know of just one importer—Böland Naturals, Inc. If you are interested, you can contact them at 1-866-MIOPLEX or Mioplex.com. Mioplex is all-natural and safe to take. All the people I've spoken with have said taking the one-a-day tablet has led to the roping effect Tina described in her letter.

Aren't you glad you asked?

Jamie Ireland

THE UGLY AMERICAN HANDBOOK

"Garçon! French fries but no garlic sauce."

Europeans hate us? Next time you're overseas keeping their second-rate economies afloat with good ol' U.S. greenbacks, give 'em something to whine about.

Condescending Frogs; scheming Krauts; bottle-wielding, snaggle-toothed Brits. For some reason our "allies" in Western Europe see fit to perceive us as arrogant, self-indulgent, and hypocritical. Losers! We're sick of their inferiority complex—why can't they just accept their inferiority? Evidently, somebody's forgotten who gave the world Baywatch. To try to smooth things over, the White House has created the Office of Global Communications to shine up our image with our fair-weather foreign friends. But who needs bureaucrats handling our PR when we can put our own best foot forward. . . and step right in their kidney pie? We've come up with a code of conduct for Americans overseas, designed to enhance mutual understanding, backed by devastating nuclear firepower. Enjoy your trip!

FRANCE

A great place to visit—if you like berets and body odor.

Country overview: The tune-up fight for any invading army bent on continental conquest. The French army has had a long and distinguished record of surrender throughout military history. Just one more good reason to question their superior attitude. Then there's their personal hygiene. No. . . wait a minute! There actually isn't!

How to win them over: The French have plenty to be embarrassed about, so put them at ease by letting them know "anybody can make mistakes." For example, "The Louisiana Purchase wasn't a bad deal, given the real estate market at the time." Or, "That whole Maginot line thingy would've worked if those Nazis just played by the rules." When traveling, let the locals know you're a connoisseur of the local cuisine they're all so proud of. Invite one to join you at a sidewalk café for a box of wine and some fries.

Hairy legs, much like C4 fuses, always lead to a terrible bang.

Handy phrases:

- "Thanks for the statue! You're welcome for your continued existence as a free and independent nation."
- "Don't you guys have any Wonder Bread?"
- "I didn't know Notre Dame had a cathedral over here!"
- "Sorry. Americans only accept surrenders on Mondays and Thursdays."

"Eat me!"

AMERICA: DON'T LEAVE HOME WITHOUT IT

YOU PACKING?

We consume 30 percent of the world's resources. So fight homesickness by bringing three or four percent with you.

- Hungry-Man frozen dinners (Don't let mad cow disease keep you from getting your RDA of beef.)
- Pepto-Bismol
- Mad magazine
- Box of White Castle burgers
- Lysol
- Brown paper bags (German chicks have excellent bodies, but. . .)

MANIFEST DESTINATIONS

STICK THIS!

American tourists: Mark your territory with these badges of honor!

▲ CUTE COUNTRY! How much do you want for it?

▶ EUROPE: Brought to you by the U.S.A.

▲ For monuments, local girls...

The beautiful thing about English birds is that they'll drink you under the table and then drag you home.

Come on—show us your spice racks!

GREAT BRITAIN

Nice people once you get past the language barrier.

Country profile: Can you blame the Brits for being bitter after spending the past 50 years pissing away an empire? So join in the fun and hit the pubs to lament "the good old days when we enslaved the wogs for their own bloody good." Indeed, the U.K. seems to be a place delightfully mired in the past—with palace guards and oral hygiene straight out of the Dark Ages. Come for the blood pudding, stay for a thrashing from violent soccer hooligans!

How to win them over: It's hard to overstate the importance of setting a good example in the U.K. So sidle up to the bar in one of the charming old locals, tell them to put a lid on all that 10W40 they have on tap, and buy the house a nice, cold Bud.

Handy phrases:

- "Help me settle a bet. You're not all gay, right?"
- "Love your little kingdom! Sorta like America's Mini-Me."
- "Why don't you just call it soccer like everybody else?"
- "You talk just like the bad guys in Gladiator."
- "You guys are hilarious. I love that Paul Hogan."

GERMANY

Sure they like to stir things up, but the strudel's fantastic.

Country profile: Europe's "child who plays poorly with others" had built an entire culture based on military invasion and looting until our B-17s bombed the bastards back into the 19th century. These days ethnic hatred is confined to freelance organizations, but the rank-and-file fascist is still slow to embrace American initiatives overseas. They do have McDonald's now—we recommend the Sausage McBratwurst.

How to win them over: Last fall Germany's justice minister compared our president to Adolf Hitler. It was obviously a wistful remembrance of nastier times, so encourage their view that Bush is indeed der Führer in a pair of Levi's. In no time a crowd of goose-stepping skinheads will materialize to do your bidding (they'll get your laundry whiter than white!). The Germans also love talking about local architecture, so ask why all the buildings seem to have a vintage of around 1946.

Handy phrases:

- "I already paid for this lunch, pal. It's called the Marshall Plan."
- "What? No Coors Light? You call this a beer hall?"
- "Is this pig brain kosher?"
- "Sorry about your Beemer—you try parallel parking a tank."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

GIRLS OF THE WORLD

Our crash course in intercultural courting will have her begging you to cross her border lines.

If you want your Don Juan act to translate, you'll need some foreign intelligence. International chicks dig guys who take the time to understand and embrace their culture. And lose the NASCAR hat.

WOW THE FRÄULEINS

According to the German women's magazine Petra, only one in 10 Fräuleins is satisfied with her bedroom skills. Find the other nine and tell them you're disciplined enough to drill 'em to perfect their technique.

NICE BRITS!

During WWII, all it took for a GI to get over in war-torn England was a Hershey bar and a pair of nylons. These days handcuffs do the trick. One global sex survey found that British birds are more into S&M than anybody else. Fancy some pain, luv?

FEMME BOTS!

Most of the mademoiselles are about as clean-shaven and hygienic as a rhesus monkey, so remember to bring all the essentials for French foreplay, such as soap, industrial-strength deodorant, and hedge clippers.

Styling, Cannon for Oliver Piro; grooming and makeup, Elisa Flowers (Bernstein and Andriuli)

The Spanish Are nada!

SPAIN

Home of plush Corinthian leather!

Country profile: It's hard to believe this nation of lisping pretty boys sporting ruffled shirts and spit curls once controlled half our hemisphere. They may be effete, but they also have balls. Last fall the highlight of Madrid's Fashion Week was a show featuring models clad in bullet-riddled outfits, strutting to The Star Spangled Banner and the sound of exploding bombs. Charming!

How to win them over: Nothing says buenos días to the Spanish like alcohol-induced unconsciousness and animal cruelty. These people blow out of work every day at one to sleep off their nightly sangria-paloozas—just so they can do it again that night. The nation's most popular "sport" involves shoving four-foot shivs into a confused bull to the delight of a packed house of sadists. Sort of like Celebrity Boxing but easier to pick winners. Show up at a local's house with a dead house pet and a six-pack of wine coolers and take a nice long siesta on the couch; they'll think you've been to Spanish finishing school.

Handy phrases:

- "It's funny how Barcelona sounds like My Sharona."
- "Do all bullfighters dress like Elton John?"
- "You Mexicans sure are friendly."
- "Give me 20 on the bull to win."
- "Drop the chalupa."

"Shh! Don't tell them I'm a rat."

SPANISH-FLY GIRLS

The mustachioed ladies of Spain aren't as ladylike as they used to be, so be aggressive. A recent survey reports that fiery Spanish babes orgasm more easily during sex than any other women. Olé!

SIGN LANGUAGE

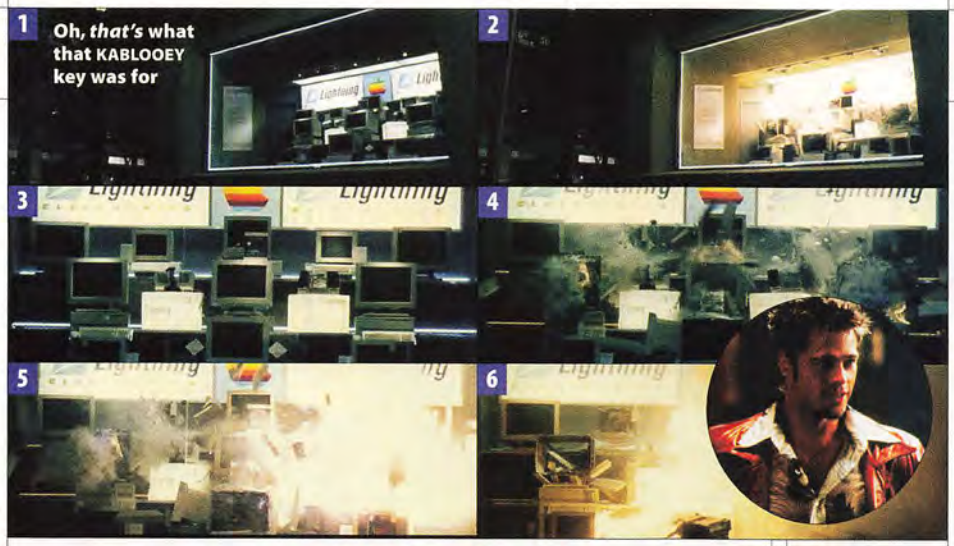
A THOUSAND WORDS

Don't speak European? Use these point 'n' snap cue cards to get what you need. Hey, garçon!

MOVIE SECRETS

GET READY TO DOMINATE EVERY MOVIE CONVERSATION FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE.

OK, so you can quote entire monologues from Pulp Fiction and you know that the only correct answer to the question "How do you measure yourself against other golfers?" is "By height." Frankly, pal, that's freshman-level stuff. If you want to ace a shootin'-the-movie-shit-around-the-bar exam, you're going to need to cram. Luckily, we've scribbled down a cool trivia cheat sheet, chock-full of inside info about your favorite flicks that Ebert would trade his left donut to know. Remember: There's useless crap, and then there's useless crap you can use to one-up your buddies.



CODE-BREAKERS

Randomly chosen numbers or secret celluloid messages?

■ So why does Morpheus' ship in The Matrix, the Nebuchadnezzar, bear a plaque reading MARK 3. NO. 11? Well, in the Bible, Mark 3:11 reads, "The unclean spirits fell down before him and cried out, saying, 'You are the Son of God.'" Not to be confused with Matthew 4:18, which, we think, reads, "I knoweth kung fu."

"Pinkeye? Is it serious?"

■ Paul Newman's prison number (37) in Cool Hand Luke is another sly Good Book reference. Luke 1:37 says, "For with God nothing shall be impossible"—except, apparently, escaping from a redneck chain gang.

■ And you thought Fight Club's twist ending was a mind-fuck: At the movie's 84th minute, Project Mayhem blows up a bunch of Apple computers—a planned reference to Apple's famous Orwellian "1984" commercial, first aired in 1984. Need more? That ad was directed by Ridley Scott, who made Blade Runner with cinematographer Jordan Cronenweth, whose son, Jeff, was the cinematographer on Fight Club.

■ In Star Trek: First Contact, the villainous Borgs' eye flashes are actually Morse code, spelling out the names of the cast and crew.

WHEN PROPS ATTACK!

Giving the stunt man the afternoon off isn't always the smartest move.

■ Al Pacino may have introduced those cock-a-roaches to his "little friend" in Scarface, but he took some friendly fire, too. Wielding the grenade-launching assault rifle in the movie's climax, Pacino burned his hand so badly on the hot barrel that production was shut down for weeks.

■ While shooting an intense sparring scene in Martin Scorsese's classic boxing flick, Raging Bull, Robert "Method" De Niro got a little too amped up and accidentally broke one of costar Joe Pesci's ribs. Pesci's yelp of pain worked so well that Scorsese decided to leave that take in the final cut.

■ Rounding out the Italian mishap trifecta, GoodFellas' "fucking prick" lackey Spider (Michael Imperioli) accidentally gashed his hand on broken glass. He was taken to the ER, where doctors mistook gunshot makeup for a real chest wound. Which is funny . . . like a clown.

BOND BITS

007-IN-CHIEF
From Russia With Love was selected as the second 007 movie after John F. Kennedy put it on his "top 10 novels" list. Incidentally, it also happened to be the last film JFK watched before his ill-fated trip to Dallas.

FORMALITY
Pierce Brosnan's Bond contract stipulates that he can't wear a tuxedo in any other movie, a clause he circumvented in a Thomas Crown Affair party scene by undoing his monkey suit's top button and loosening the tie.

DIRECTOR TRADEMARKS

What's the fun of being in charge if you can't make yourself happy?

■ Sam Raimi's really fond of his busted-ass 1973 Oldsmobile Delta 88, 'cause it's in all his movies (except Western yarn The Quick and the Dead). It even shows up as Uncle Ben's carjacked ride in Spider-Man.

■ Quentin Tarantino is his own best invention, but he's also concocted a brand of cigarettes (Red Apple) and a fast-food franchise (Big Kahuna Burger) that appear in all his movies—even those he didn't direct, like From Dusk Till Dawn.

Travolta, before supersizing

■ George Lucas' pointless trademark is the number 1138, a shout-out to his 1971 debut, THX-1138. It's on the hero's license plate in American Graffiti, while in Star Wars, lost Allman Brother Chewbacca is called a "prison transfer from cellblock 1138." Pal Steven Spielberg even uses it: Indiana Jones emerges from a Nazi sub in Raiders of the Lost Ark just as a loudspeaker blares, "Ein, ein, drei, acht" (Kraut for "one, one, three, eight").

"Dude looks like a la-a-a-dy..."

■ John Landis constantly uses "See you next Wednesday," a throwaway line from Stanley Kubrick's 2001: A Space Odyssey. It's the title of the porno film in An American Werewolf in London, and it's on the state-trooper-hiding billboard in The Blues Brothers.

Lifestyles of the bat-shit crazy

ON LOCATION

Planning a vacation? Let these movies be your guide.

■ Looking for a romantic getaway? We recommend the Timberline Lodge on Mt. Hood, Oregon, which was used as the Overlook Hotel in The Shining. But don't request poltergeist hot spot Room 237—the owners asked Kubrick not to use an actual room number.

Canadian for "Bahamas"

■ While the Psycho house is a tourist trap on the Universal back lot in Hollywood, you could get a more genuine chill by cruising by its doppelgänger, the actual spooky Kent, Ohio home that Hitchcock copied. Just don't ask to use the shower.

BOND BITS

SPY GAMES
GoldenEye was actually the code name of an allied contingency plan for the Nazi invasion of Spain that former SIS agent turned author Ian Fleming helped concoct.

DAS BOAT
The famous powerboat jump over the bayou causeway in Live and Let Die set a world record for distance: 115 feet.

"What? Is the hat too much?"

PAYBACK'S A BITCH

Why entertain when you can just take cheap shots at your enemies instead?

■ In 1996's Independence Day, the filmmakers included a sarcastic crack about The X-Files. So in 1998's X-Files movie, Agent Mulder (David Duchovny) just happens to drain his little green man all over an ID4 poster in an alley. S-s-s-s-subtle.

"Can we do one more take?"

■ Disgruntled Who Framed Roger Rabbit animators sneaked Disney boss Michael Eisner's home phone number into some background graffiti. The gag was yanked from the video release.

■ In the unauthorized John Belushi biopic Wired, the sound of helicopter blades accompanies the appearance of a fictionalized John Landis. Why? Well, Landis directed the segment of 1983's Twilight Zone: The Movie in which actor Vic Morrow and two children were decapitated when a helicopter stunt went awry. Ouch!

■ Horror honcho Wes Craven named A Nightmare on Elm Street's bogeyman Freddy Kreuger after a kid who bullied him in grade school. Sheesh, the girl who dumped him on prom night must really dread every new Craven release.

END GAME

Some classic examples of last-minute fine-tuning.

FATAL ATTRACTION
What you saw: Psycho booty call Glenn Close is shot by Michael Douglas' wife after a dramatic rise from the bathtub following her supposed drowning.
What was planned: Close commits suicide, and Douglas is accused of murder. His wife then finds Close's taped confession. The audience is treated to a flashback of Close slitting her own throat.

FIRST BLOOD
What you saw: After a blubbery "I was called a baby killer" confrontation with Colonel Trautman, post-traumatic stress boy Rambo surrenders to the police.
What was planned: Knowing that there's no going back, Rambo kills himself. Test audiences, oddly enough, thought this ending was a "downer."

Please don't feed the junkies

THE QUICK AND THE PAID

The short stories behind some cool cameos.

■ Green Bay Packers quarterback Brett Favre snagged his role as Cameron Diaz' ex in There's Something About Mary when the original jock, San Francisco's Steve Young, passed on it because the vulgarity-laced script went against his strict Mormon beliefs.

■ Fookin' hell, mate! The sleazy dealer from whom Renton buys the suppositories in Trainspotting is none other than the novel's bad-boy author himself, Irvine Welsh.

■ The prison guard who returns Jake Blues' belongings (including a soiled prophylactic) in The Blues Brothers is played by Frank Oz, a.k.a. the voice of Yoda. Three years later the warbly voiced actor-director would again cameo as a prison guard, this time in Trading Places. Cool!

Undertakers Anonymous

Man, that's a tough spare

HEAVY ARTILLERY

Know a self-described film buff? Floor him with these strictly hard-core hits.

■ One of the most disturbing homages ever is the Star Wars epilogue, in which our galactic heroes receive medals for blowin' up the Death Star real good. The scene is a shot-for-shot re-creation of a famous award sequence in the Nazi propaganda epic Triumph of the Will.

■ A very distinct scream first recorded for the little-known 1951 cowboys-and-Injuns flick Distant Drums but associated with an arrow-recipient character named Wilhelm in 1953's Charge at Feather River, has become the longest-running movie inside joke ever. Filmmakers have sampled the death shriek in dozens of flicks, from Star Wars to Spider-Man, to the point that sound editors refer to it as "the Wilhelm."

"This Orc walks into a bar..."

■ In the beginning of The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring, Bilbo entertains a group of Hobbit tots with a story about three trolls turned to stone (events from The Hobbit). Later, when Aragorn is tending to the wounded Frodo, you can clearly see three stone trolls in the background. That's the trivia equivalent of a +10 magic spell.

OCTOWUSSY
In Dr. No the shot of the tarantula crawling toward 007 while he's lying in bed was shot with a stunt man. Why? Mr. Sean Connery is morbidly afraid of spiders.

SWISS EATS
Piz Gloria, Blofeld's headquarters in On Her Majesty's Secret Service, is a restaurant atop Mount Schilthorn in Switzerland.

CHEAP SHOTS

Screw CGI. Nothing beats these examples of bargain-basement FX.

■ Yep, that was a real horse's head in The Godfather. They used a fake one in rehearsals but slipped in the real deal when the cameras rolled.

■ The classic Bogart flick Casablanca had such a shoestring budget that they couldn't even use a real airplane during the famous ending. Instead, a cardboard cutout was placed in the background and surrounded by a midget flight crew, giving the illusion of a full-size plane.

"We'll always have this bit of trivia."

WAR'S HELL

How great war movies got the blood-and-guts details right.

■ There's a reason why the tough-guy actors in The Deer Hunter's harrowing Russian roulette scene—Robert De Niro, Christopher Walken, and John Savage—look so genuinely scared shitless: A live round was put in the gun, with crew members trusted to check that the bullet wasn't in the chamber.

■ To heighten the gut-wrenching realism of Saving Private Ryan's D-day invasion, director Steven Spielberg cast real amputees to play GI's with their limbs freshly blown off. Hey, fellas, wave to the camera!

Charlie's lunch, part deux

■ The reason the grunts in Platoon look so naturally wasted in the scene where Sergeant Elias (Willem Dafoe) and mates smoke marijuana is that they lit up real Thai weed. The catering table was never heard from again.

BOND BITS

BIG HURTS

Danger is inherent in making any Bond flick: A helicopter carrying the director of From Russia With Love crashed while filming, nearly killing him. Connery sustained serious back injuries during his climactic Fort Knox battle with henchman Oddjob in Goldfinger. A stunt man died filming the bobsled chase in For Your Eyes Only, and Tom Jones reportedly fainted after belting out the title song for Thunderball.

GOOFS GONE WILD

Movie sets have gaffers. They also have gaffes.

■ When basset-hound-lovin' Snowman drives jubilantly through the Atlanta fairgrounds at the end of Smokey and the Bandit, a band is playing "Marching Through Georgia." Since that ditty is about Civil War Union general William Tecumseh Sherman reducing Atlanta to smoldering ashes, it's pretty unlikely Georgians would use it to celebrate anything . . . even the arrival of bootleg beer.

■ "At my signal, unleash Levi's." Early in Gladiator, Russell Crowe's Maximus walks through camp assessing the aftermath of the battle with the Germanic tribes. When he stops to pet one of the horses, a crewman wearing blue jeans can clearly be seen wandering in the background.

"Oi. What're you lookin' at, mate?"

MOUTHING OFF

Four classic lines that were made up on the spot. Sorta like this article.

■ "You talkin' to me? You talkin' to me?"—Robert De Niro, Taxi Driver

■ "He-e-e-e-e-re's Johnny!"—Jack Nicholson, The Shining

■ "How am I funny?"—Joe Pesci, GoodFellas

■ "You're gonna need a bigger boat."—Roy Scheider, Jaws

AMATEUR'S CUT

Steal tips from the pros and make your home movies special-edition-worthy.

DIRECTOR TRADEMARK

Like Sam Raimi, include your crappy first car in every vacation video. Unlike Sam Raimi, this isn't for kitsch value but for "I have no car other than a Pinto" value.

IN-JOKES

Insist that your girlfriend wear a COED NAKED PUB CRAWL T-shirt as a sly nod to your very first film, Taping My Wasted College Roommate as He Ralphed off the Balcony That Time.

CAMEOS

Always make a brief appearance in your own projects, allowing you to claim later that those multiple closeups of your fingers wiping schmutz off the lens were totally on purpose.

SPECIAL EFFECTS

Sure, you only captured four seconds of your neighbor's hot daughter sunbathing topless, but the miracle of slow-mo can make it your opus' entire second act.

ALTERNATE ENDINGS

Get a tepid response from your "focus group" (read: neighbors bribed with free onion dip)? Reshoot an alternate twist ending, in which your wife doesn't come back from vacation or your son doesn't graduate from kindergarten.

SPECIAL FEATURES

Include a rambling audio commentary. Because if there's anything people love more than your home movies, it's you talking about your home movies. M

If you've overlooked STAGG® Chili because it comes out of a can, it's time to take another look. Because unlike glass jars, or freezing, or just about anything else, canning is perfect for making great chili. You see, the amazing thing about a can is that it works just like a pressure cooker. Once the can has been sealed, none of STAGG® Chili's delicious flavors can escape. And since it keeps on cooking and simmering for about three hours, it allows the myriad of wonderful ingredients to enhance each other. Just like when you slow cook a pot of chili at home. Oh, and what ingredients! STAGG® Chili uses plenty of juicy beef. Succulent red tomatoes ripened in the California sun. As well as mouth-watering chile peppers and zesty onions cut up into bite-size pieces. The result is a chili so loaded with good things, it has taste you can actually see. (Unlike those other brands, which seem to blend away to nothing.) What's more, the can's air-tight seal preserves STAGG® Chili in perfect condition, so there's no need for any artificial preservatives. But if you really want to see how good STAGG® Chili is, pick up some today. And find out why we fell in love with a can.

Great chili goes in. Even better chili comes out.

Incredibly, the can works like a miniature pressure cooker.

There are 12 varieties. Hope you have a big pantry.

ONE REASON STAGG® CHILI TASTES SO GOOD IS BECAUSE IT COMES OUT OF A CAN.

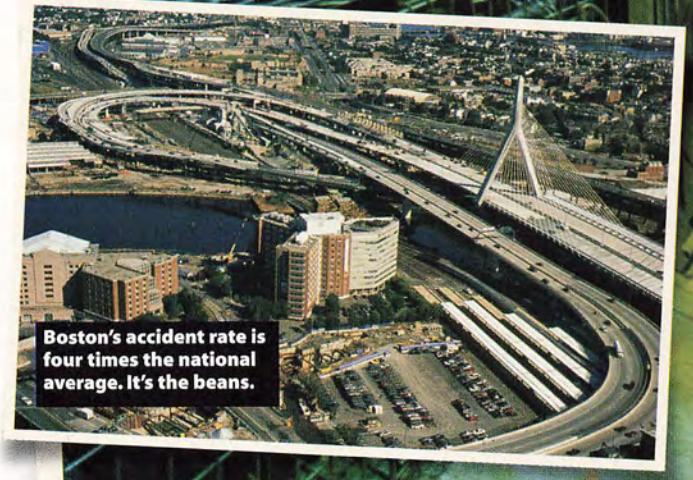
THE CHILI CHILI-LOVERS LOVE

WONDERS OF THE MODERN WORLD

BEHOLD: THE BIGGEST! THE COOLEST! SIMPLY THE MOST AWE-INSPIRING FEATS OF ENGINEERING YOU'LL EVER HAVE TO DRIVE A FULL FIVE MILES OUT OF YOUR WAY JUST TO GET AROUND.



Boston's accident rate is four times the national average. It's the beans.

Fun fact: Workers remove soil through open sections they call "glory holes." No, really.

THE HOLE THAT ATE BOSTON!

1. THE BIG DIG

Bostonians have suffered for 12 years through the Central Artery/Tunnel Project (a.k.a. the Big Dig), the largest highway project ever attempted.

■ All told, the project uses enough concrete to build six sidewalks side by side from Boston to San Francisco. And wouldn't that be useful!

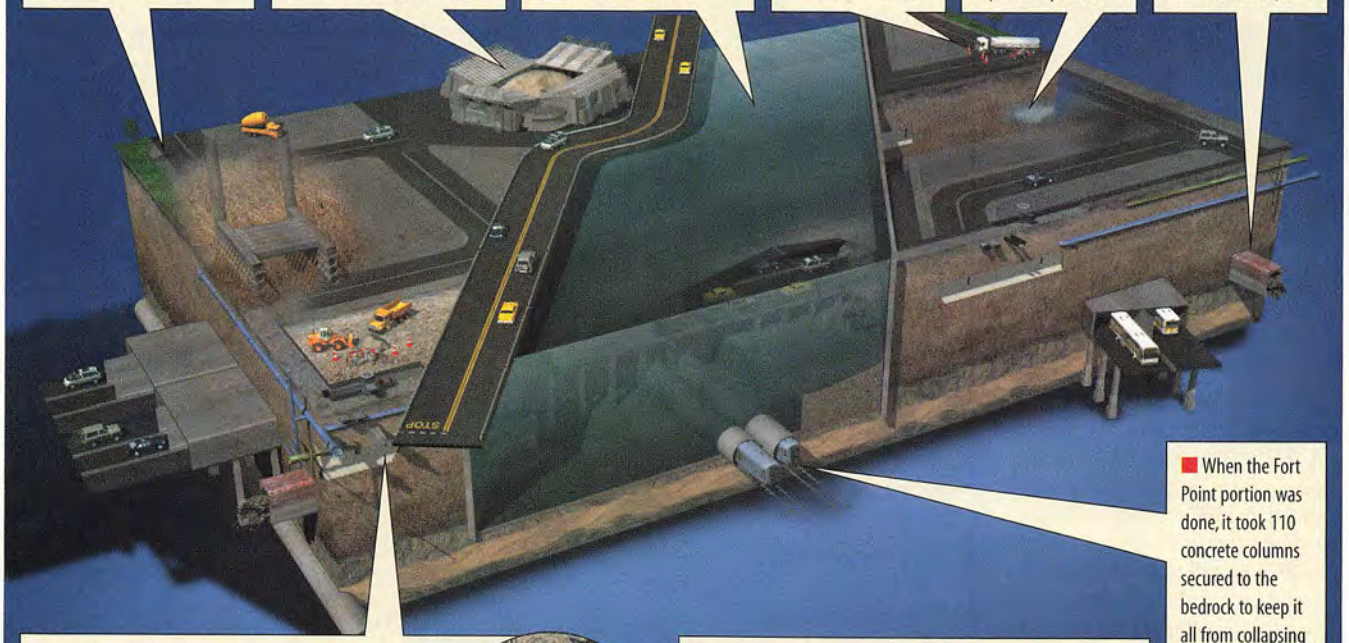
■ They've removed enough dirt to fill Foxboro Stadium 15 times. That's wasteful. They should fill it once, leaving the rest to bury George Wendt.

■ The tunnel under the Fort Point Channel had to go under a waterway, a bridge, and a railroad yard, and over an existing subway line.

■ The ground by the Fort Point Channel was too loose to support any digging. Workers first had to pump the mud full of calcium chloride and water to firm it up, then pipe coolant into the soil directly in front of the tunnel mouth to freeze it solid...

■ ...then they'd drill through five feet of frozen soil, build the tunnel forward five more feet, and repeat the process.

■ The Big Dig had to relocate 29 miles of utility lines to make way for 5,000 miles of new fiber-optic cable and 200,000 miles of phone cable (enough to encircle Kelly Osbourne twice).



■ When the Fort Point portion was done, it took 110 concrete columns secured to the bedrock to keep it all from collapsing on the subway line only six feet below, thereby granting Red Sox fans an extension on their miserable existences.

A. Since much of Boston used to be harbor, backfilled over 400 years with soil, excavations have collapsed. So...
B. ...workers dig trenches in the bedrock, up to 120 feet.
C. They reinforce the trench by pumping it full of slurry, a mixture of clay and water, and dropping in steel beams.
D. Then they pump in concrete, which forms a wall to hold up streets and buildings while they tunnel underneath.

■ At press time the Big Dig is already $11 billion over budget. No, that's not a typo. Remember, this is a job attempted by people who can't pronounce the word car. The project burns through a mind-blowing $3 million a day and employs 5,000 people. Even though the federal government is footing 60 percent of the bill, this puts the overall price tag for each and every Massachusetts taxpayer at about $3,000.

THE GRAND SCHEME

What the hell are those kids doing down there?

Navigating through Beantown always meant driving on the 40-year-old Green Monster, a confusing, rickety elevated artery more congested than Ted Kennedy's colon. Like the other Green Monster, it's a monument to ineptitude, heartbreak, and failure.
A. The plan was to replace half the old highway with tunnels 10 lanes wide...with underground interchanges...under downtown Boston...without screwing up traffic.
B. They also built a new 10-lane bridge over the Charles River that just happens to be the widest suspension bridge ever constructed.
C. To make things interesting, they're extending the Massachusetts Turnpike four miles—all the way through downtown to Logan Airport—with tunnels under South Boston and Boston Harbor.
D. The first link in this entire chain, the four-lane Ted Williams Tunnel (named for the famous ballplayer/human slushie) was finished in 1995. That's one down...

TITANIC DISASTER

2. THE P-36 OIL RIG

This rig was the biggest in the world—until March 15, 2001, when a gas leak sparked three explosions, tearing the pontoons that kept it afloat.

The lower compartments quickly sank 150 feet below the surface.

■ Seawater flooded in, and the rig began to list at a 30-degree angle. Support ships frantically pumped compressed air into the pontoons to try to force the water out.

■ The 40-story tall P-36 weighed more than 31,000 tons.

■ There were 175 people working on the rig. Ten were killed in the explosion, but the others were all evacuated by helicopter.

■ When the water turned choppy, the rig capsized, plunging 4,400 feet to the ocean floor off Brazil.

■ All told, the Brazilian oil company Petrobras (owners of the rig) lost about $500 million.

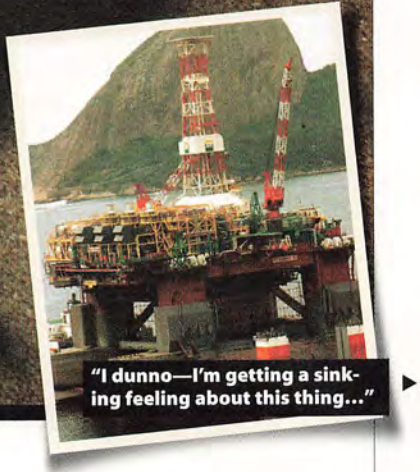
■ Each day, the P-36 pumped 80,000 barrels of Saudi coffee.

■ Instead of legs, a semisubmersible rig like the P-36 uses a huge anchoring/mooring system to float on the surface, allowing it to operate in water over 1,000 feet deep. Up to 12 different anchors are used to hold the rig in place.

■ The more well-known jack-up rigs are anchored on legs that are built up from the sea floor—but they can usually only operate in less than 350 feet of water. Semisubmersibles like the P-36 are assembled completely in dry dock. They plant it on a pair of pontoons, like a Rosie-size catamaran, and partially flood the pontoons so they sink just under the surface but are still buoyant. Then they tow the whole thing to the site.

■ The anchors can be raised to move the rig. Held tightly between the anchors, it holds stable in rough water—when it's not sinking.

■ Semisubmersible rigs are connected by a thick pipe to the oil deep below the seabed—it's a dangerous, highly pressurized umbilical cord.



"I dunno—I'm getting a sinking feeling about this thing..."

DRILL BITS

Grind through rock like Anna Nicole Smith through Ring Dings.

A. The drill head they use is a tube surrounded by three spinning cones, with teeth made of tungsten carbide steel or industrial diamonds.
B. While the drill, well, drills, workers at the top pump a lubricant into the space between the drill and rock.
C. Pressure whisks debris out of the hole and through the tube. But they have to keep an eye on the pressure—if it builds up, the whole thing could blow out and spew death. Heads up!

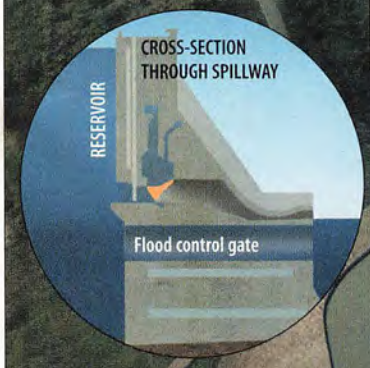
RETAINING WATER

3. THREE GORGES DAM

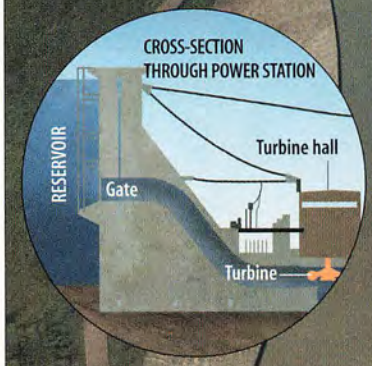
When it's completed in 2009, the Chinese will have built the largest dam in the world, with a reservoir you can see from the moon. The moon, Alice!

Urban renewal, Chinese style

■ The finished Three Gorges Dam will be 1.2 miles wide and tower 607 feet high.



■ Crack addicts: Construction was so shoddy that the Chinese premier ordered much of the dam torn down and rebuilt. In 2002 a new series of fissures was discovered.

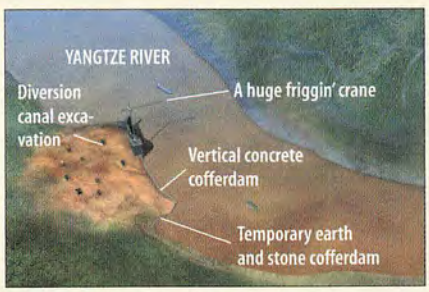


■ The total cost is estimated somewhere between $17 and $100 billion. (Wait—aren't Asians supposed to be excellent at math?)

■ Three Gorges will eventually generate 18,200 megawatts of energy, or the equivalent of 18 nuclear plants—plenty to keep Madonna's vibrator running for weeks.

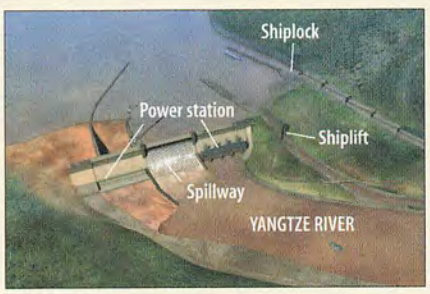
CHINESE DELIVERY! SOMEDAY...

It took hundreds of years to build the other wall in China. This one will take less than 20. Now* that's *progress!



STAGE ONE (1993 TO 1997)
A cofferdam was built: Giant 77-ton trucks dumped rocks into the water until they cut off a portion of the river. Entire factories were built on-site to supply equipment. The water was drained, workers dug the dry riverbed deeper to divert the river through it, and the dam was then reinforced with concrete.

STAGE TWO (PROJECTED TO FINISH 2003)
They started building the main dam from the other side, using the same dam approach of first building a temporary cofferdam. A giant dam power plant is currently being built alongside the dam, along with a pair of dam shiplocks to move supply vessels around the dam during construction.



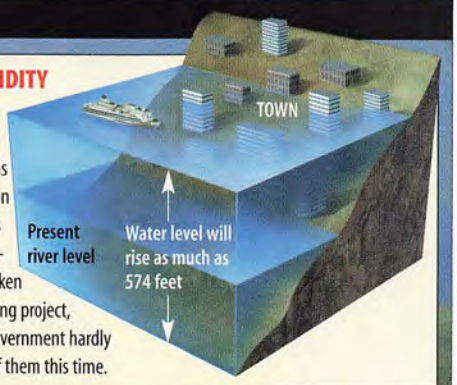
STAGE THREE (2004 TO 2009)
The remaining channel of the river will be walled off with yet another cofferdam, the real dam will be extended all the way across, then some politician will cut a ribbon, and voilà! Insta-lake. Now everyone can finally crack open their fortune cookies on the skulls of any remaining political dissenters.

■ The reservoir will be 370 miles long. That's farther than the annoying drive from Boston to Philadelphia . . . with a bit less traffic.

■ It'll hold 1.39 trillion cubic feet of water—150 billion more than Hoover Dam's Lake Mead, enough to flood New Jersey to a depth of 6.7 feet.

IT'S THE HUMIDITY

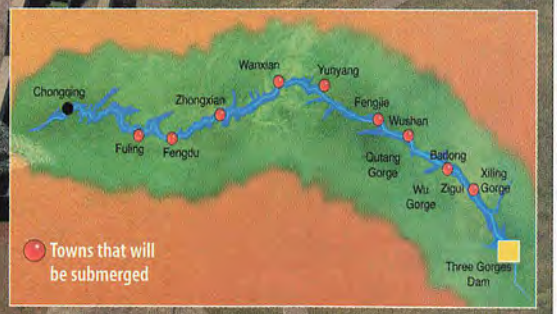
■ Rising water levels will erase 13 cities and 140 towns and force 1.5 million people to move. It's the largest resettlement ever undertaken for a civil engineering project, and the Chinese government hardly had to shoot any of them this time.



■ Workers are pouring a full 35 million cubic yards of cement, which would be enough to lay a 16-foot-wide highway across the U.S. . . . more than 10 times.

■ Corruption is also rising, with 230 cases of embezzlement and $57 million vanishing, leading to a death sentence for one official.

■ The builders are taking out 133 million cubic yards of earth and dumping 38 million cubic yards of stone back in. They're erecting 309,662 tons of metal structures (enough for 280 billion paper clips), using 390,108 tons of reinforcing bars (which could make 1.29 billion Slinkys—we can do this all day, people) and 2.5 million square feet of leakproof concrete walls.



■ The dam will manage flooding on the Yangtze River, which has killed over 300,000 people in the past century, while supplying electricity for an underdeveloped region.

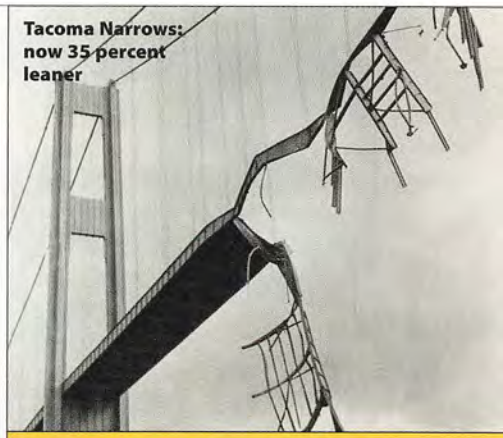
■ Ships will be able to travel 1,500 miles inland, opening up a market of 380 million people. (Egg roll in 30 minute or money back!)

■ But where did they put all those people? The Chinese claim that the thousands who have moved "enjoy a better life, thanks to the assistance of the government." OK, then!

■ On the other hand, human rights groups claim that Chinese police are relocating people by force. One Chinese government official admitted that if they can't move everyone, they'll just "have to use floodwater to force the people out."

■ One slight environmental problem: Flooding all those towns and factories will release untold amounts of toxic waste that's now buried on dry land. In addition, experts have estimated another one billion tons of industrial and human waste will be dumped into the reservoir each year. Everybody in the pool!

■ An estimated 123 different sources of radioactive debris will also be flooded. Um, waiter? Cancel that poached dog.



Tacoma Narrows: now 35 percent leaner

BLUNDER CONSTRUCTION

Saluting America's most memorable crumbling pieces of crap.

TACOMA NARROWS BRIDGE

Nicknamed "Galloping Gertie" for its tendency to twist in the wind, the bridge became the freak show of Tacoma, drawing herds of people to witness her gyrations and ride her. Engineers had chosen not to reinforce the span against high winds, and on November 7, 1940 a mere 42 mph breeze caused ol' Gert to rock so violently that cement waves as high as 28 feet rippled across the span, which snapped and collapsed into Puget Sound. (Luckily, three people got off just before it fell.)

U.S. INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL COMPANY MOLASSES TANK

On January 15, 1919, a storage tank holding 2.5 million gallons of molasses exploded, creating a 15-foot tidal wave of sweetness that rushed at 35 mph through downtown Boston, leaving everything brown and sticky like a Mexican restaurant men's room. Apparently, the tank wasn't built to withstand fermentation, which had occurred as the temperature rose 40 degrees in three days. The Great Molasses Flood knocked down several buildings and an elevated train line and drowned 21 unfortunate (and evidently slow) people.

HYATT REGENCY SKYWALKS

A dance contest at a Kansas City hotel on July 17,1981 ended with a thud when two skywalks collapsed, leaving 114 people dead and 200 more injured. The cause? The architects had demanded that the skywalks look "thin and airy," so they, like you, were equipped with an undersize rod and nut. Engineers attached rods from the lower to the upper skywalk (instead of to the ceiling), expecting one nut to support the weight of both. It didn't.—Laura Leu

TALL TALES

4. PETRONAS TOWERS

These twin towers in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia stole the title of World's Tallest Building from the Sears Tower in 1996. They were never apprehended.

With the economy in the crapper, plans for even taller cone boobs have been scrapped.

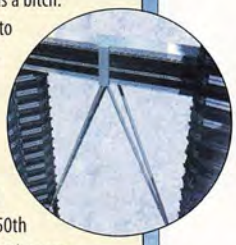
■ The Petronas' air-conditioning system, with a 30,000-ton chilled water plant, can be used to create a "pressure sandwich" to immediately contain any large fires that break out. (Chips not included.)

■ They have only 88 floors (to the Sears' 110), but these spires on top put Petronas 29 feet higher than the Sears Tower, much to Chicago's chagrin.

■ The towers have cores of reinforced concrete, stronger than the steel cores of the World Trade Center that collapsed under the intense heat of burning jet fuel.

■ A 192-foot-long enclosed skybridge connects the towers at the 41st and 42nd floors, 558 feet above the ground. Don't cross it with a buzz.

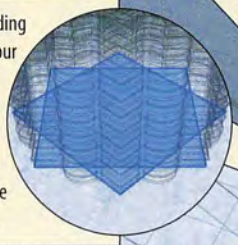
■ Construction of the skybridge was a bitch. They had to hoist 493 different pieces, using winches mounted onto the 50th floors of both towers.



■ The foundation is made of reinforced concrete (32,550 tons), requiring 104 supports up to 377 feet long.

■ To avoid snapping in the wind and sending pedestrians plummeting to their messy deaths, the skybridge is mounted on enormous ball bearings, allowing it to sway back and forth. It really rocks if you play that new Nelly CD!

■ Each building has the contour of an eight-point star, formed by intersecting squares at the tower bases.



WHO'S REALLY THE TALLEST?

It ain't the height of your tower, it's the rigidity of the structure. So they say...

Hint: It's not Canada's CN Tower. After the currency exchange, it's only 64 percent as tall (we never get tired of that joke). Here's the deal: The Council on Tall Buildings and Urban Habitat measures height from the ground to the top of any architectural spires, but not antennae. To rate, it has to be an actual building, not just a giant perch-on-a-stick where you can spit on American tourists. (Sorry, Canada.) But the CN Tower does have a glass floor 1,122 feet above the ground that's guaranteed to freak your shit right out. Which is cool.

Petronas Towers (Malaysia): 1,483 feet	Sears Tower (U.S.): 1,454 feet	Jin Mao Tower (China): 1,380 feet	Citic Plaza (China): 1,280 feet	Shun Hing Square (China): 1,260 feet	CN Tower (Canada): 1,815 feet	Empire State Building (U.S.): 1,250 feet

*Canadian; doesn't count.

MADE IN JAPAN

5. AKASHI KAIKYO BRIDGE

Completed in 1998, this is the longest suspension bridge in the world, with a main span of 6,532 feet and a total length of 12,832 feet (almost 2.5 miles).

- Each cable on the bridge is made up of 36,830 wires of high-tensile steel, supporting more than 110,000 tons of bridge weight and transferring it to the towers.
- All told, the bridge was made with the recommended minimum daily requirement of 199,902 tons of steel and 1.85 million cubic yards of concrete.
- It would take eight Sears Towers or four Brooklyn Bridges to span the Akashi Kaikyo. But why bother?
- Winds through the strait gust up to 179 mph. The Japanese Public Works Research Institute built the world's largest wind tunnel just to test bridge models.
- To install the cables, a line called a pilot hauler rope was trailed over the towers by helicopter. Then they suspended a catwalk from the rope so some crazy-ass construction guys could go up there and assemble the main cable strand by strand.
- The support cables pass over two steel towers more than 600 feet above the road surface.
- Amazingly, there were only six construction injuries and no deaths. Compare that to the Brooklyn Bridge, where building offed 27 people, three of whom bought it the hard way, getting the bends from working in compressed air below water level.
- The towers were built by stacking 30 prefabricated steel segments on top of each other. The whole shebang was anchored with 230-foot-tall, 263-foot-across steel caissons sunk into the ocean floor and filled with concrete.

- They built the thing to withstand a 8.5 Richter-magnitude earthquake. But should Godzilla wake up again, they're fucked. It's freakin' Godzilla, man.
- The unprecedented span cost the Japanese around $3.6 billion... that's rotsa yen! M

Don't Even Think About Buying A Penis-Enhancing Pill Until You Read This!

Yeah... you already know that Size Does Matter... So, if you would like to experience Longer... Thicker... Harder Erections that will leave your partner Begging For More... Before you try any of the dozen or so "penis-pills" on the market, you should first know the facts... Here's 7 Concrete reasons why you should first consider trying SizeMAX before you spend a single dime!!

Fact #1:
ONLY The SizeMAX Formula Has Been Proven To Work By A Leading Woman's Magazine:
Here's what they said, "Yeah, size doesn't matter, but it wasn't a bad thing exactly when my boyfriend's penis suddenly got bigger after just 3 days. All I know is that's it's 3 weeks later, and he's one and a half inches longer, much wider, and I'm not gonna complain."

Fact #2:
SizeMAX Gives You The Strongest Money-Back Guarantee!
If for any reason you are not satisfied with SizeMAX, you'll receive a full and complete refund of your purchase price including your shipping fees! No pill will work for everybody, and if someone's pill doesn't work for you, you'll want to make sure you can get your money back. Beware of one Ohio-Based company who brags about their "customer satisfaction guarantee (CSG)", because they will not give you your money back. If you call and say you're not getting results, they'll tell you to take more pills! Only SizeMAX is confident enough to offer you both your money back as well as your shipping fees!

Fact #3:
The SizeMAX Blend Is The Most Powerful On The Market!
The all-natural SizeMAX blend is so powerful, it's available only by prescription in Canada! Herbs are available in numerous grades of quality- just like diamonds. SizeMAX only uses the highest grade ingredients on the market. Cheaper copycat products may be looking to save a few dollars and mislead consumers by using cheap substandard herbs that are either old or from the least desirable part of a plant that lack the potency only SizeMAX has. SizeMAX uses only the highest pharmaceutical-grade Yohimbe 15:1 Extract which has even been recognized by the FDA to increase blood flow to the penis. Some of the pills on the market do not even contain Yohimbe- so ask before you buy! If a pill has little or no Yohimbe, it's not going to do anything for you. Only SizeMAX uses 500mg of the purest African Yohimbe Bark available.

Fact #4:
SizeMAX Staffs Customer-Care Representatives 20 Hours A Day- Not 3rd Party "Call Centers" Like Others!
We actually staff trained experts who are here to answer any and all of your questions about SizeMAX. We'd never put our customer's calls in the hands of a call center who only know how to ask for your credit card number. When you have a product-related question, you're not going to want to talk to a call center... you want a real, live, experienced person!

Fact #5:
SizeMAX Is Professionally Manufactured!
It can put your mind at ease knowing that every SizeMAX capsule is inspected by hand before it is ever bottled. SizeMAX is manufactured in a World-Class 80,000sq. ft. Laboratory that people come from all over the world to tour on a daily basis. Who knows where other's pills are being made... Maybe in their home's garage! Remember, safety first!! You have to swallow it!

Fact #6:
No Fake Doctors...
No False Product Claims!
Did you see the ad from a California-Based company that claims their pill can increase your penis size by five inches? C'mon... not even SURGERY can add five inches! But because this unscrupulous marketer puts a bogus doctor on their ad who may not even exist, thousands of men are falling for their lies every month! Even if you do not buy SizeMAX, don't be fooled by this scam. This same shameless marketer is profiled in Fact #7 below.

Fact #7:
Don't Fall For The Buy One Bottle, Get One Bottle Free Scam!
The same California company listed above in Fact #6 also tells you that when you buy a 30-day supply, you'll get a second month's worth for free. It's a LIE! Look- a 30-day supply of SizeMAX is 60 capsules. That's 2 capsules a day... This other marketer says to only take one capsule of their product a day. One capsule a day will not do anything for you, even if their blend was as powerful as SizeMAX- which it's not because their blend does not even contain Yohimbe or L-Arginine (the two most powerful and expensive active ingredients needed to make it work). So, you're not really getting a month's worth for free, you're just taking less pills... and less pills will do little or nothing for you!

So there you have it. Now you can make the right decision and discover why Elite Athletes, Movie Stars, Successful Businessmen, International Playboys, and men of all ages are having the best sex of their lives with SizeMAX. It's so extraordinary, even the guys who make Viagra are buying it! I have their order form to prove it!

Forget all the hype and the false claims! Order SizeMAX. It's the only enhancement pill proven to work by a popular woman's magazine, it has the strongest blend you can buy, and it also has the most liberal money back guarantee. Over 120 MILLION capsules have already been sold and just 8% take us up on our guarantee, so what does that tell you? Make the right choice- SizeMAX!

(Continued) Tom Brady's brilliance continues in NFL GameDay™ 2003, where he'll take the helm for the Patriots again. This time as the starter, not the young kid waiting for a break. One thing's for sure: he's the guy that every other team is gunning for, and that's a tough spot to be in.

With this in mind, count on Brady to call a number of plays using NFL GameDay 2003's new "Hot Routes." This new feature allows the quarterback to change a receiver's pass route at the line of scrimmage based on what he sees in the setup of the opponent's chosen defense. Defenses are once again very tough in NFL GameDay 2003, where new multi-player tackling provides the most realistic football action ever. But if defenses fail to wrap up the ballcarrier, fans will see one of 70 new "break tackle" animations. This means every play will be different and guys like Tom Brady can enjoy the highest replay value ever (and add to their constantly growing highlight reels).

Another part of the game that Brady looks forward to is the 2,200 fluid animations, including 300 amazing new tackles and catches – all of these under the most responsive control ever offered. When defenses take hold of a man and tackle him into the ground, it's not only something witnessed, but also felt. Perhaps this is one feature that Brady could have done without.

While some players would have enjoyed the time to rest during the off-season, Brady embraced the chance to improve. In fact, even with the departure of his quarterback mentor, Brady knows the Patriots are still looking great. As is every team in NFL GameDay 2003, with thousands of polygons going into the creation of each player. In addition to that, all-new textures and lighting make sure every player jumps off the screen with incredible realism. Also, 180 new player faces give true-to-life emotion to the players, whether they're celebrating a touchdown or gathering their pride after an embarrassing sack. Sources also say Brady was "blown away by GameDay's new 60-frames-per-second gameplay," which puts the athleticism of the NFL into each player like never before.

NFL GameDay 2003 starts off with a bang, featuring all 32 NFL teams and updated team rosters, including the latest trades and free-agent signings. GameDay participants will enjoy the improved look of the stadium models, featuring new lighting, texture enhancments, renovations and the newest in field wear. As Tom Brady and others are on the road, they'll see new stadiums in Houston, Chicago, Seattle, Green Bay and Detroit. And at home, the Patriots will get used to a brand-new stadium of their own.

As the regular season warms up, Brady and the Pats will have their work cut out for them. Although they're a preseason pick by most to win their division, nothing is for certain. Except, of course, that Brady will see for the first time the agonizing effort it takes to defend a championship. He's going to take some licks, but you can expect to see the same kind of winning spirit that makes him a great leader and one of today's finest all around quarterbacks.

UNEASY RIDER

It takes a real man to cruise down the street on a tiny, bright pink scooter. At least that's what our mom says.

Every guy dreams of luring something sweet, petite, and supersexy between his legs. We're not sure that this is exactly what they have in mind, but the City Mantis is the jaunty, unholy offspring of Evel Knievel and a Korean circus act. This darling little electric scooter can book down sidewalks or your local produce aisle at a top speed of 14 mph with a range of about 14 miles. Powered by two 12-volt batteries that charge in less than six hours in any household outlet, this 44-pound road piglet folds down tiny enough to fit in the cracks in Gary Busey's skull. Ride it to a biker rally—if you're not particularly into personal safety or a long, happy retirement. ($649, Citymantis.com)

2. MadWaves MadPlayer ($299)

Shut up and make your own damn music. That's the beautiful idea behind this handheld multitrack tune machine. It generates bass lines, riffs, and leads in any of over a dozen musical genres (hip-hop, rap, R&B, downbeat, ragga, manga, drum 'n' bass, jungle, house garage, techno, trance, ambient, New Age, ballad, bossa, and our very favorite, polka!), letting you then sample sounds from any external source. There's also a WMA/MP3 player and an FM tuner built in for the creatively uninspired—although those lazy asses do not deserve to rock. (Madplayer.com)

3. Logitech io Pen ($200)

Medieval peasants would've feared this device, which captures your natural handwriting and saves it as electronic text so you can edit it on-screen. Then again, without electricity, this pen, with its included sync/recharge cradle, would be nothing more than a shiny prison weapon. To use, simply pay your electric bill and write anything you like (yep, anything). When you're done, rest the pen in its cradle and—shazaam!—up to 40 pages at a time are instantly transferred onto your computer. But don't come crying to us if they burn your ass for witchcraft anyway! (Logitech.com)

5. Akadema Praying Mantis ($130)

Why is this state-of-the-art catcher's mitt called the Praying Mantis? Nobody knows. Is it because of the revolutionary shock absorption between the thumb and index finger? Because the glove snaps shut on contact with the ball? Probably not—as our interns found, real mantises all morph into a smudge of green paste upon contact with a fastball. Perhaps it's because users of this killer glove often devour their mates after copulation. (Thegloveshop.net)

6. Slip On Pocket ($22)

What's nicer than a woman who picks up the check? A woman who reaches up under her skirt to pick up the check. Cleverly attached to a garter, this minipurse holds credit cards, lipstick, and cash, with plenty of room left over for an edible condom or two. Choose from five different sexy designs, all made with stretchable fabric and an adjustable strap. Hey, it's Valentine's Day, and giving her a Slip On Pocket is the least you can do after she got you that utility jock. (Sliponpocket.com)

7. Charismac FireWire Dino ($75) and Canon GL2 Camcorder ($2,999)

He may bear some resemblance to a certain Japanese amateur urban Santa, but this desktop dino is actually mankind's benevolent helpmate. The four FireWire ports on the creature's back will help control wire clutter on your desk, while the blue light in his mouth reminds you of heaven, or a Japanese strip club. Ahh . . . Pair it with the superfine GL2 portable video camera for broadcast-quality digital video and just sit back and wait for Hollywood to come calling. Hollywood is your dealer's name, right? (FireWire Dino, Charismac.com; GL2, Canondv.com)

NUMB AND NUMBER

Baby, it's co-o-o-ld outside! Good thing we got Old Man Winter's number.

BY PAUL HOCHMAN PHOTOGRAPHS BY FRANK VERONSKY

1 DON'T EVEN AX!

The next time what's-her-name's got you hiking in the snowy woods, why not bring the lightest full-service ice ax available? (Not for that, psycho.) The Black Diamond Raven Pro, with polished stainless-steel head and 7005-T6 aluminum shaft, extends 60 centimeters when fully elongated. That's right, this silver scepter is 13.5 ounces of ice-breaking charm rod—and chicks dig it. ($100, Blackdiamondequipment.com)

2 I'M IN GLOVE!

A great winter glove must master two things: snowballs and zippers. Kombi's Bumps insulated gloves have high, loose insulation, designed to create a pocket that traps warm air while a waterproof, breathable lining expels built-up moisture. Translation: no bulk. Add a textured shell and leather palm and you've got one badass zipper-pullin', snowball-makin' starter kit. Picking your nose may take some practice. ($40, Kombisports.com)

3 HIP, HIP—HICCUP!

Eureka! A personal swig holder requires no instructions, no training, and only one arm. Fill with the stomach-warming beverage of your choice and you'll be making buck-naked snow angels till thaw. Bottoms up! (Flaskshop.com)

10 VEST IN SHOW

What's in your fleece vest this winter? Flask? Check. Chunky bars? Check. Batteries? Check. Conductive fibers in the North Face's battery-powered Met5 electric fleece vest heat up to a cozy 114 degrees, keeping lift rides and climbing breaks safe and comfortable. Dual heat zones keep warmth where it's needed—over your liver and kidneys in back and your upper torso in front. If only everything on the slopes were this hot. ($399, Thenorthface.com)

11 SHIRTS AND SKINS

OK, these folks may be a bit too fond of New Zealand sheep. (Hello, Dolly!) But there is more to their research than a little mutton lovin'. Turns out Kiwi Merino lambs create the softest fleece in the world, and, using a secret looming process, Ibex has created a superfine, unbelievably warm, non-itch Merino wool base layer that won't stink like synthetics and evaporates 30 percent more moisture vapor than any known fabric. Baa-a-a-a. ($73, Ibexwear.com)

12 BURN, BABY, BURN

Red noses are for reindeer. Only fools and tools get sunburned on the slopes. So if you've got the luck of the Irish (or just their pasty-white complexion), Kiehl's All-Sport "Non-Freeze" Face Protector with SPF 30 may be the only thing standing between you and a table for one at the lodge. ($15, Kiehls.com)

4 PARKA SPACE

Aerogel—used as insulation on NASA's Mars Rover—is about 97 percent air. And now it's available on Earth in this lightweight jacket rated to 50 degrees below zero. That's one giant leap for parka-kind. ($2,700, Aerogel.com)

5 WEATHER OR NOT?

"It's freakin' cold!" won't cut it when your extremities are on the line. That's why the Brunton Sherpa calculates windchill, altimeter readings, barometric pressure, and more. Snowman-approved. ($159, Brunton.com)

6 READY, AIM...HELP!

What's the fun of getting hopelessly lost in the Yukon back country if you can't draw attention to yourself? Orion's 12-Gauge Alerter Basic Marine Signal Kit flare gun, with three red aerial flares, is totally waterproof and shoots a whopping 15,000 candlepower of GET ME THE HELL OUT OF HERE! to an altitude of 250 feet, making it visible up to 21 miles. Warning: not to be taken internally. ($30, Orionsignals.com)

7 TOP DRAWERS

Cold sucks. Mr. Johnson much prefers a warm Jacuzzi, dirty talk, and tummy rubs. But even in extreme conditions, Snowskins' microfiber/Lycra long johns are sure to keep your little frozen friend warm while also enhancing your circulation and decreasing your rate of dehydration. The gentle pressure allows the body to flush lactic acid from muscles faster, leaving you less sore tomorrow morning. 'Cause we know how Mr. Johnson loves a morning workout. ($90, Sportskins.com)

"Bite me, Batman!"

8 DAS BOOTS

Scientists say that 15 percent of your body heat escapes from the feet. (They also say that masturbation leads to early blindness—but we'll just have to see, or not see, about that one.) Either way, these Sorel Badger boots are rated to minus 40 degrees, making them among the warmest ever made. Now if we could only find our feet. ($90, Sorelonline.com)

9 COLD MAN WALKING

Ever wonder how those Special Ops guys over in Afghanistan track through the snow? B-I-N-G-O! Atlas 12 Series Out-of-Bounds snowshoes, with patented heel crampon, new Traverse Trac rails for stability and traction, and spring-loaded bindings, have become standard issue. But they're crap on the dance floor. ($269, Atlassnowshoe.com)

13 POLE POSITION

Is your trekking pole adjustable or are you just happy to see me? Life-Link's new Aide-de-Camp Anti-Shock On Demand pole can double in size to its full Dirk Diggler potential of 56.5 inches. It features a carbon fiber lower section (reducing swing weight) for a feathery light feel and an On Demand Anti-Shock feature that softens the shaft. Hey, is that a good thing? ($120, Life-link.com)

14 HOT DOGS

You're stranded on a remote mountain, so low on supplies you have to eat your own feet. Better slip a paper-thin self-regulating Hotfoot panel into each boot for the toastiest toes since Joan of Arc's. Now what wine goes well with filet of sole? ($99, Hotfeet.com)

15 "THEY CALL ME MR. BIBS!"

If hanging moons off pristine alpine peaks is your thing, buckle up. L.L. Bean's new Mountain Guide bibs, made of light, breathable Gore-Tex XCR and vented with two-way side zips, have easy-pop, front-mounted suspender clasps that'll open to the elements faster than you can say "My turkeys are done!" Just yank the adjustable side tabs to de-layer. All the best Alaskan strippers are wearing them! ($299, Llbean.com)
